PREFATORY REMARKS.

THE Author formed the design of visiting the older English colonies of the West Indies, and of examining, so far as he might be permitted, their local records, with a view to the production of a work which should contribute, through the genealogical medium, to a better knowledge of the social origin of those colonies, in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

It may not be unworthy of note, that those early settlers were, as a rule, men of great energy, with moderate political opinions. They belonged to the same class from which the titled aristocracy is for the most part derived, and many of their numerous descendants are to be found in the present peerage and baronetage, holding posts of honour under the Crown.

The higher class of planters or proprietors almost invariably educated their children in England; and, although in those days, the voyage was so much longer and more difficult than at present, it is surprising how frequently those colonial gentry made it; and many of their adventures might, even now, afford subject of interest for the novelist.

There was, towards the close of the seventeenth century, another element in the social condition of these colonies—namely, white slaves,—an institution perhaps suggested by Cromwell's Government, but only carried out to its full extent, by James the Second, while disposing of the unfortunate adherents of Monmouth.

Another principal object of the present collection is, to preserve records which, in the course of a few generations, would otherwise be destroyed through neglect, spoliation, the effects of climate, and other causes.

In Jamaica, most of the handsome old mausoleums—at Port Royal, for instance—being secluded from the town, and partially concealed by gigantic cacti, cashaw, and mangrove trees, have been, from time to time, broken into and plundered—the leaden coffins stolen, the marble tablets carried off, and sold again for the like purposes, and the empty vault left for the lugubrious pic-nics of the "dangerous," or at any rate, idle classes, whose broken bottles, mingled with the relics of humanity, bear witness to the revelries by which they have been desecrated.

In many other places, the older slabs have been broken up, to supply the ordinary necessities of repairing walls, &c., while, in some of the disused cemeteries, the monuments themselves have been gradually and surely entombed, by the encroachments of the matted crab-weed. In numerous instances, the larger sepulchres have been insidiously destroyed by the seeds of overhanging trees, which, vegetating in their fissures, and striking their roots downwards, in search of nourishment, have so disintegrated the masonry, as, in some places, to carry it up in their growth, and in others, to reduce it to mouldering heaps. Such a struggle between robust nature and frail art, in the less frequented private cemeteries, has generally resulted in the entire destruction of tombs scarcely half a century old.

The present collection was made in 1858 and 1864-5,* and almost entirely annotated by the author, under circumstances of considerable personal difficulty, in the churches and cemeteries of Jamaica, and Barbados. Later, he discovered that some pamphlets, entitled "Church Notes," and "A History of the Parish of St. James', Jamaica,"† had been printed by the late Mr. Roby, of the latter island, and from portions of these, which fell into his hands, and also from a small MS. collection of pedigrees given to him by the late Mr. H. L. Long, of Hampton Lodge, he has made several useful extracts, which will be found duly acknowledged, along with other desultory contributions.

After many researches amongst the local public records of the West Indies, the author, on his return to England, continued his annotations in the various registries of the three Kingdoms; but, ultimately finding these too extensive for the limits of his work, he made a careful selection, and then abridged the latter.‡

One of the objects of the present work being to link, however slightly, the Home and Colonial records of the seventeenth century, the author made an application to His Grace the Secretary of State for the Colonies (1867), who very liberally endeavoured to facilitate his farther inquiries in the islands which he had just left; but owing to unforeseen obstacles this attempt was frustrated, and, consequently, many valuable sources of information yet remain available for some future labourer in the same field.

In Barbados, the task of transcribing epitaphs, owing to the highly cultivated and open character of the country, was comparatively easy; but in Jamaica, where the wild vegetation of nature is so remarkable, the explorer of its older and private

* The author's term of service in command of the depot of his regiment—2nd Batt. 60th Rifles—having then expired.

† Unfortunately, the author was unable to discover the 1st and 2nd Parts of the latter, until the greater part of Jamaica had passed through the press.

‡ The present object being to present the materials in as condensed a form as possible, it has seemed unnecessary to repeat in every instance local official titles, names of the estates of their owners, and much interesting collateral matter, which may be reserved for another occasion.

cemeteries, must resort to manual labour; and the author has, not unfrequently passed days, from breakfast-time until sunset, with the common woodman's cutlas, clearing away the dense and matted undergrowth, while approaching the objects of his search.

In these dark and humid spots, shut up in woods which have undone the labours, in some instances, of generations, the loneliness is equal to, if not greater, than that of the great forests of India, for here animal life—with the exception of birds and insects —is almost unknown, and the perfect solitude is quite undisturbed. But although there may be grander trees in the Indian forests, they cannot compare with those of the West Indies in the wealth of gorgeous blossoms, and in variety of aspect, from the wild tamarind, whose graceful boughs hang out their scarlet clusters, and the spicy pimento, with its chaste myrtle bloom—to the cedars, and the giant cotton tree, overgrown with delicate or brilliant flowering orchids, and festooned with climbing plants of exquisite beauty.

Without a record of every consecrated ground in the West Indies, and more especially, in a densely wooded island like Jamaica, it would be impossible to make a complete collection of these mortuary memorials; and moreover, without very unusual advantages, a private explorer would meet with incessant and vexatious obstacles. The author made this collection as exhaustive as possible, where he had the opportunity, but much has been left undone.

He did not confine himself, as will be observed, to the transcription of merely old, curious, or dignified epitaphs, but included many of no particular interest, and which can only be expected to acquire a slight value in the lapse of time. Nor did he desire to make, by a studied selection, any invidious distinction between social classes, and different races and nationalities. There are doubtless inconveniences in thus treating the subject—especially since the period of the negro emancipation—but there is a classical excuse, which may be accepted as sufficient apology—

> "Nil nimiùm studeo, Cæsar, tibi velle placere;
> Nec scire utrùm sis albus an ater homo."

The intention of the author was originally restricted to a collection of epitaphs, from the earliest period to the year 1750, but, for reasons which will be apparent, this limit has been frequently exceeded, except as regards the island of Barbados, in which his stay was so short that it would have been impossible to do otherwise, while on the other hand, where inscriptions, mostly of modern date, were received from a few minor islands, it seemed undesirable to reject them, in conformity to an arbitrary arrangement.

The endeavour has been made to avoid, in annotation, the error of over-estimating the importance of families whose influence was only local, but, at the same time, not to overlook anything curious in their histories, and also to give space to their genealogies, in preference to those already before the public, and which are readily accessible.*

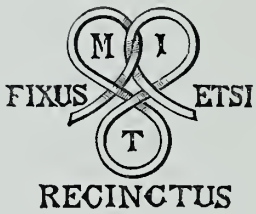
* Archbishop Whately was, doubtless, just in the following remarks, but, as much of this spirit of which he complained will always prevail, it is scarcely safe to be generous :—"I have always desired to repress that narrow, provincial spirit, that would separate island from island, county from county, one portion of the British empire from the other. Two eminent prelates, raised to the bench of bishops in England, are natives, not of Great Britain, but of Barbados. Suppose the narrow feeling had been nourished of Barbados for the Barbadians, could these prelates ever have attained their high dignity?"



JAMAICA.

JAMAICA.

THE idea of making Jamaica an English colony seems to have been started about that period when, from our increasing settlements on the American Continent, the want of convenient harbours among the West India Islands began to be felt. (Cal. S. P., Col. S. 1613.)

The project was revived at intervals, but as is well known, the immediate cause of our obtaining possession of the Island of Springs, was the failure of the expedition against Hispaniola.

On the capture of the former island (May 10th, 1655), by Penn and Venables, about fourteen hundred of the inhabitants took refuge in the almost inaccessible fastnesses of its mountains, while a few of the Negro and Portuguese population submitted to the conquerors.

Although the commanders were subjected to censure for their conduct in other particulars, the capture of Jamaica was a source of pride to the Lord Protector, who addressed himself with energy to its colonization, for which purpose immigrants were invited from all the other English settlements, while the officers and soldiers of the force which had taken possession of the island received, shortly afterwards, allotments of land on a species of military tenure, a practice observable in many patents even so late as the year 1743.*

While Barbados had from the first been so exclusively British that at one time the Island legislature even passed a law adverse to Irishmen, the English in Jamaica seem at once to have fraternized with the races already there, and to have sedulously invited the influx of strangers from all parts. The mother country provided administrative talent, and the energy, aroused amongst their cadets by the decay of good houses during those troubled times at home. The Jewish settlers brought their proverbial talents into its commercial interests; and to the Spaniard was perhaps due much of the social style of the people. There was another element of prosperity in the frequent visits of Buccaneers, who called to dispose of their plunder on the wharfs of Port Royal, and whose personal gallantry and quasi-crusade against Spain were no mean recommendations. Moreover, many of them were gentlemen by birth, and in every way fitted to mingle with the higher class of residents.

* A useful and economical system of defence might be organized in this and the other islands, by granting temporarily small allotments of waste land (strategically distributed) to pensioned soldiers and their white offspring, renewable periodically, and under conditions which would develop the resources of these colonies, check continental propagandism, and relieve the mother country of a serious burden in time of war.

Hither came likewise many of the unfortunate victims of the Darien intrigue, and introduced a strong and useful Scotch element.

Still the island felt the want of skilful agriculturists, and although it had received at the outset every encouragement, it required the steady diligence of the acclimatized Barbadian to bring its great estates into that working order which resulted in such colossal fortunes in the following century.

Sir Charles Lyttleton convened the first Legislative Assembly of thirty representatives; who formed, so to speak, the nucleus of the local aristocracy (1664—75).

Of the French invasions of 1691 and 1702 there is little to be said; while the history of the Maroon war, which lasted thirty-seven years, can only be brought within the scope of these introductory remarks as the field where the warlike reputation of the militia leaders was tried, and, notwithstanding their frequent reverses, well sustained.

Earthquakes, servile revolts, and terrible epidemics followed each other at comparatively short intervals, and are sometimes briefly noticed on the tombstones of the early settlers. Many of these inscriptions are quaint, but the majority are in objectionable taste—a fault rather of the period than of the place, and introduced from England, where, during the eighteenth century, a bombastic style of epitaph was usual. There are, however, many magnificent marble sepulchral monuments in Jamaica, from the chisels of the first sculptors of Europe, and which, in discussing the whole collectively, are sufficient to redeem the faults of some others. A few remarks on the parishes of Jamaica may here be necessary.

In the time of Sir Thomas Modyford (1664) there were seven parishes, namely, St. Catherine, St. John, Port Royal, Clarendon, St. David, St. Andrew, and St. Thomas, but there was only one church—the present Cathedral of Spanish Town. It is true that about the time when Colonel Edward D'Oyley received his commission as Governor, from Charles II. in 1661, or soon afterwards, the island was divided into twelve districts, which, according to Long, included the subsequent parishes, in addition to those already mentioned, of St. George, St. Mary, St. Anne, St. James, and St. Elizabeth; and this number has been further increased by the addition of Vere, Portland, St. Thomas ye Vale, Metcalf, Kingston, Manchester, Westmoreland, Hanover, St. Dorothy, and Trelawney.

St. Thomas in the Vale and St. Dorothy were constituted parishes in 1675; the former was originally a part of St. Catherine. St. Dorothy separated from Clarendon, in 1675.

Westmoreland was separated from St. Elizabeth, in 1703, and Hanover, from the former, in 1723.

Trelawney separated from St. James in 1770; Portland was taken from St. George, and St. Thomas in the East, in 1723.

Manchester was formed out of portions of St. Elizabeth, Clarendon, and Vere, in 1814.

Metcalfe was severed from St. George and St. Mary, in 1841.

Vere was separated from Clarendon, in 1673.

The Parishes were thus constituted:—

Between 1661-4—St. Catherine, St. John, Port Royal, Clarendon, St. David, St. Andrew, St. Thomas in the East.

1665—St. George, St. Mary, St. Ann, St. James, St. Elizabeth.

1673—Vere.

1675—St. Thomas ye Vale, St. Dorothy.

When the division of St. James's was first contemplated, in 1733, it was proposed to name the new subdivision Brunswick, but on the third reading, the bill was lost, and it was called Trelawney, after Sir W. Trelawney, the governor from 1767 to 1772.

The Duke of Portland was appointed Governor of Jamaica, 9th September, 1721; arrived 22nd December, 1722; and died in Spanish Town, 4th July, 1726—hence the name of the parish.

Metcalfe was so named after the eminent and liberal-minded governor of that name.

Manchester received the name of the ducal governor.

In allusion to the patron saint of its discoverer Columbus, in 1494, the emblem* of St. James, from whom Jamaica takes its name (although by a curious phonetic coincidence it was previously known by its Indian name Xaymaca, Isle of Springs) has, along with the arms of Jamaica,† been adopted in the Parochial Seals of the island.

By an act passed in 1789, burying in Churches was prohibited, and a penalty of £500 imposed on any Rector permitting it; but two local bills dispensing with that act, were specially passed in the case of the Earl and Countess of Effingham, who were the last so interred, in Jamaica; hence, at the present day, the few additions to the monuments within the Church, and, as it were, an abstract of inscription on the grave-stone without.

Besides the cemeteries of the Church of England, there are, of course, many others, which go on increasing with the progress of dissent and sectarianism, but these are comparatively modern, and therefore scarcely come within the scope of the present undertaking; at the same time, a few such collections have been preserved, and will, at any rate, afford a curious contrast in nomenclature, inasmuch as they contain chiefly the epitaphs of the blacks, who, since the era of Emancipation, have not been backward in seeking to flatter "the dull cold ear of death!"

* The Emblem of St. James are a pilgrim's staff and a gourd bottle—hence the seal of the Churchwardens of Jamaica bears according to the Local Act, 7 Vic. cap. 39—"Argent—a palmer's staff erect, depending from its rest, by a leathern thong, a gourd bottle, ppr. On a border gules five Pine Apples Or. Sigill: Ædelium Sancti Jacobi in Jamaica. (Roby.)

The double gourd bottles of the Chinese and Japanese, so frequently represented in their works of art, are called by them, also, pilgrim bottles, and may be observed attached to the girdles of the Fusiyama excursionists.

† The inscription on the Great Seal of Jamaica bearing these Arms is—

"ECCE ALIUM RAMOS PORREXIT IN ORBEM NEC STERILIS EST CRUX."

Bridges says, "This Seal was designed by the Archbishop of Canterbury." At that time (1662) the Metropolitan See was filled by William Juxon, who, when Bishop of London, attended Charles I. on the scaffold.

In giving a short account of the various religious denominations, I cannot do better than quote the words of a gentleman, whose acquaintance with the subject entitles him to be considered an authority.

"It is now (1865) two hundred and ten years ago, since the island of Jamaica passed into the hands of the English nation. One hundred and sixty-four years before this, it was possessed by the Spaniards. At three hundred and seventy-two years from this present year, it was the home of the aboriginal Indians. The latter are exterminated,* and we do not recognize any of their descendants occupying the homes of their fathers."

"The Spaniards were the first Europeans who possessed these islands. They failed to Christianize them; and destroyed the people. Scarce more than two hundred years back, the English took Jamaica, and drove out the Spaniards. Now, in addition to the Spaniards, there were Portuguese settlers here, but they were Jews, and not Christians. When the Spanish Inquisition drove the Jews, as well as the Moors out of Spain, the Jews found an asylum in Portugal. The family of Columbus, the discoverer of America, had received this island as a sovereign possession."

"His son, Diego, was created Marquis of St. Jago de la Vega. On the grand-daughter of Columbus marrying into the house of Braganza (the family that now occupies the throne of Portugal), the Jews from Portugal came to Jamaica in numbers. Though the English drove out the Spaniards from the colony on its capture, they suffered the Portugals, as they were called, to remain. These were the Jewish settlers, whose families are perpetuated to this day, in their descendants—the Dasilvas and Soarezes, the Cordozos, the Belisarios, and Belinfantes, the Nunezes, the Fonsecas, the Guttereces, the Da Cordovas, and a hundred such names. They became the first traders and merchants of the English Colony, and owe to their precedence, as a people holding to a revealed faith, the preponderance of social and political influence they possess at this day, as Magistrates, as Members of the Legislature, and as members of learned professions."

"The first introduction of the Jews into Jamaica, is thus recorded by Sir Wm. Beeston. 'On the 31st March, 1663, H. M. Ship the "Great Guest," Captain Bernard, Commander, arrived from London, and brought six Jews (with a rich cargo), who

* A cursory glance over public documents supplies us with a number of Swiss and French Huguenots: James Zellar, Rector of St. Andrew's; Hausyer, Rector of St. Catherine's; Calvin Galpine, Rector of St. John's; Mignot, Rector of a midland Parish. Joseph Delaunay, Peter Valette, and Leopold de Stapelton, Justices and Vestrymen of Port Royal in 1725. The Honourable Gabriel Marquis Duquesne, Commander of the Fort of Port-Royal,—Woolmer, Merchant of Kingston, who endowed the Grammar School of that City. There was a Huguenot Merchant, who bequeathed an annuity for a School in St. Andrew's; and the Bernards, of St. James'; the Le Contes and the Grignons, allied families of Lord Abinger, were all French Protestant settlers.

In a MS. in the House of Assembly Library, entitled "The State of the Church in his Majesty's Island of Jamaica," dated May, 1675, twenty years after the capture, it is there stated, after enumerating the then Stipended Ministers of Religion, "All the other Parishes on the North side, and St. Elizabeth's on the South, are great and ill-settled, without Churches, they being most planted in Sir Thomas Lynch's time, who ordered Glebe Lands to be reserved in two or three places in every Parish, that in time may prove convenient. He likewise, observing how prejudicial and dishonourable it was for the Ministers to be at the will of the vestrys, prevailed with the Assembly to make a Law that every Parish should pay their Parson £100 per annum at least."

pretended they came to discover a gold mine, known to them in the Spaniard's Government, but concealed for fear it might bring grievances on a place so weakly manned, as Jamaica was, in the Spaniard's time; but this was basely a pretence, for their design was only to insinuate themselves into the country, for the sake of trade, and was managed by Sir John Davidson, who sent them with Mr. Watson, a German, who managed all.'"

The Jews, for a long time, were not taxed like other residents, but were obliged to pay an annual tribute, which the government of Sir T. Lynch assessed at £750 per annum, besides five per cent on their rents.

The oldest inscribed Jewish monument is that of Leah Gedaleah :—

"The earliest missionary teachers here, under the English, were the Independents that came with the army of Venables, in 1655. They were the first stipended ministers, and when they were unstipended, by the operation of the Act of Uniformity, they became the first Christian teachers, supported by voluntary contributions. Their numbers were augmented by the imported Nonconformists, who were not emigrants to Jamaica, but shipped off to be sold for slaves to the planters."

After these came hither the Huguenots—French Protestants, who were driven out of France, on account of their Protestant faith, at the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes. Many of them were accepted as stipended ministers, and became the early rectors of parishes.*

The Moravians, under the auspices of the families of Barham and Foster, followed, about the year 1765.

These were followed by the Baptists, and other sects.

Besides the public cemeteries, there were other places of sepulture; but, "when we consider that many monuments have doubtless been destroyed by earthquake and hurricane, particularly at the times when Port Royal and Savanna-la-Mar were submerged—that some tombs have been thrown down by wanton violence, and others mutilated, or lost in the fires, alterations, or desecrations of the buildings that contained them—we ought not to be surprised at the comparative rarity of monuments of the seventeenth century. No doubt, many of these exist, in the depths of impenetrable 'bush,' or jungle, never again to meet the eye; but there are also others on private estates, which are, I am told, well known, although I have not been able to obtain any accurate description of them."

On the estate called "Greenwich," for instance, and likewise at Spitzbergen, and Dublin Castle (the latter in the Port Royal mountains), are some old tombs. Such names are often apt to put the genealogist on a wrong scent, but they are at times correct guides; and by even so faint a light, we are sometimes enabled to trace a family back to the registers of some remote parish church at home.

"Parnassus," "Bellevue," "Golden Grove," "Running Gut" (probably a corruption, by some seafaring man, of Harangutta, a branch of the Ganges), "Romsey," "Arcadia," Lacovia, and Luana are amongst the names of old estates; while it is not altogether unworthy of note, in connection with one of the old stories of the island, that the celebrated buccaneer Governor of Jamaica, Sir Henry Morgan, lived on an estate near Spanish Town, which was called Laurencefield.*

Most of the handsome old mausoleums at Port Royal, secluded as they are from the town, and partially concealed by cashaws, gigantic cacti, and mangrove-trees, have been broken into and plundered, the lead of the coffins stolen, and the empty

* In a letter from Sir S. Watson to the Committee of Plantations, 27 Oct., 1689, speaking of the depredations of freebooters on the coasts of Jamaica, the writer says:—"Major Lawrence, with a ship and pirago, and about 200 men, the last month, touched at Mantega (Montego) Bay, on the north side of this island, did no harm then, but gave out that he would sail up to Petit Goave, a French settlement upon Hispaniola, and procure a commission from the governor, wherewith he will return with greater force, and plunder all the north side, killing man, woman, and child, which has so affrighted the inhabitants of these parts, they have sent away their wives and children to Port Royal."

Lawrence and Towneley were two buccaneer captains, commanding in the fleet of Sir H. Morgan.

The Earl of Inchiquin, in a letter to the same committee, 6 July, 1690, says of the Calapatch, and some small vessels, which had been sent to the Camanas for turtle, "They were there found by Lawrence, the great pirate of Petit Goave, who bore down upon the Calapatch, and engaged him. * *" That Lawrence has taken her, is the conclusion.

For further notices of the name Lawrence in these parts, vide Appendix.

When, and where, the piratical brotherhood first settled as planters in Jamaica, cannot with accuracy be determined, prior to the proclamation of George I., dated 5th September, 1717, when he promised and declared, that each and all of the pirates who should submit before the 5th September, 1718, should have the royal pardon for piracies committed.

The adventurers who entered the fraternity of freebooters in the time of Lawrence,* were influenced by reasons for their lawlessness different from those which existed amongst the earlier buccaniers.†

Their act was hostility to the Spaniard, because the government of Spain, having made all trading within their declared lines of empire, unlawful, put it down as piracy; but, after the restoration of Charles II., and the disputed succession to the British throne on the abdication of James, enabled Louis XIV. to resort to his avowed and decided warfare, as a partizan of James against William and Mary, it gave an abiding salvo to the consciences of English desperadoes (similar to those under the belligerent Federals and Confederates, in the quasi piratical Alabamas, Georgias, and Floridas which swept the high seas), and gentlemen like Lawrence did not hesitate to become adventurers. Such men yielded in acquiescence, when the king's proclamation, on the succession of the Hanoverian line, assured a settlement of all differences, by the suppression of the Scotch rebellion of 1715. Those that held out, on the chances of continued disorder in England, were such runagates as Blackbeard (Teach of Spanish Town), Rackham, and the petty rascals distinguished as Piccaroons.

The later history of the freebooters assumes a different aspect from that of the legitimate (so to speak) Buccaniers, and belongs rather to the HOME, than the FOREIGN department.

At the present day, an islet and reef on the coast of Jamaica bear the name of Rackham; and on the former may be noticed the site of the gibbet where perished the last of the Piccaroons.

There was in the possession of a late President of the Executive Committee, a deed of his maternal ancestor, Claver Tayler, a member of "the fraternity," dated in 1655, at Cabo Bonito, in Westmoreland (parish), the year of the capture of the island by Penn and Venables. Claver Tayler was a grandson of Tayler, one of the pilgrim fathers of the "Mayflower," and perhaps a settler from among the crew. His location was Rhode Island. The Taylers (probably through their previous common adventures) formed family alliances with the Lawrences.

There exists a MS. account of European families in Jamaica, compiled by a member of the Hinds' family. My informant had not seen it himself, but had no doubt of its existence.

The Honourable Alexander Bravo (Auditor-General's office), of a Portuguese family, is said to possess much valuable information as to the rise of the older Jewish families in Jamaica, which, it may be observed, have developed no small amount of ability amongst their members.‡ Amongst the earliest of the converts from Judaism were the Vidals, of Spanish Town, and the Israels, of St. Dorothy.

* He was twice married, first in 1729.

† Properly so spelt.

Amongst desultory works on the buccaneers of the West Indies, is one more immediately connected with the present subject, "An Account of the Rise and Growth of the West India Colonies, by Dalby Thomas, London, 1690"—Harleian Misy., vol. ix., p. 422.

"Memoranda of West Indian History," divided into "One Hundred and Fifty Years Ago" and "Supplement" to the same, ending with the disastrous war with Spain, in 1702.

vault left for the lugubrious picnics of the "dangerous classes," whose broken bottles, mixed up with human bones, bear witness to the revelries by which these solemn scenes have been desecrated.

No doubt the social vagabond of these parts sees little to reverence in such monuments. His own remains may be hastily consigned to the deep, or disposed of by the local authorities.

"And in the next generation let his name be clean put out." "Root out the memorial of them from off the earth."

These, and many similar expressions in Scripture, show the estimation in which records of the dead were held ; and that it was no derogation from spiritual hopes, or any evidence of pride and vanity in the living, to be solicitous of such mementos.

I have endeavoured to curtail as much as possible the conventional eulogies of these epitaphs, most of which contrast unfavourably with the pathetic simplicity of one, which recalls those of the early Christians at Rome.

"LYTTLETON, D.D., SUÆ IN VICINIA SEPULTÆ FILIOLUS OB. 1662."

A suspicion also rests, in many instances, on the heraldry of some of the more recent monuments ; but this is a question apart from the collection.

There are two inscriptions which perhaps require special notice in these remarks, the one published by Sir Hans Sloane* is thus described as then still existing, at Sevilla D'Oro, a few miles from St. Ann's Bay (Jamaica), and where, it is said, many Spanish mortuary memorials still remain concealed by the encroaching turf :—

* Sir Hans Sloane mentions in his work on Jamaica (published in 1725, but written from notes made in 1688, while he was physician to the Governor, the Duke of Albemarle), a number of little incidents and names of persons residing in that island, which are, in connection with the present work, not altogether uninteresting.

He alludes to his own account of the destruction of Port Royal, published in "Philosophical Transactions," No. 209, p. 77.

His description of the asthmatic Sir Francis Watson and his plethoric "lady" is graphic. "The Lady Watson, aged 50, and very fat." Sir Francis Watson, aged 55, "wheezing and asthma." Sir Henry Morgan is depicted in 1688, when he was about 45 years of age, as "lean, sallow coloured," his eyes a little yellowish, and belly a little setting out or prominent—Mrs. Banett, aged 45, as of a spare body—Dr. Cooper, aged 45, of a yellowish swarthy complexion."

"Major Thomas Ballard is aged 35," is said to be "much given to extravant drinking," that he is "plethoric and of sanguine complexion. Mrs. Aylmer, a lean woman of 35."

Amongst other names of residents, he mentions D———, an English physician who lived at Guatemala, and who had been taken prisoner by the Spaniards ; Captain Hemmings, living near Seville ; Captain Harrison, a planter in Liguanea ; Colonel Ballard ; Mr. Barnes, a carpenter living at Guanaboa ; Mr. Rowe, in Spanish Town ; one Captain Gough ; Colonel Crew, Captain Groves, Captain Powell, Mr. Rhadish, Mr. Lane, a child of Colonel Fuller, Mr. Anthony Gamble, a cook ; Colonel Walker, Mr. Rayney, Colonel Needham, Mrs. Pain, Colonel Ryves, Mr. Halstead, Mrs. Cope, Mr. Molines, John Parker, a lusty fellow ; Roger Flower, a baker ; Rev. Mr. Lenning, Mr. Wm. Kay, Dr. Rose, Stephen Legs, a wheelwright ; Rob. Nichols, Mrs. Barrett, Mrs. Duke, Geo. Thrieve, a bricklayer ; Harris, a joiner, &c.

On his way from St. Ann's to Orange River, Sir Hans Sloane returned from the North side of the island, by a road on the ridge of hills called Archer's Ridge, near the Orange River, probably alluding to a place so called after a certain John Archer, who received various grants of land in the time of Charles II., and who, one is strongly disposed to believe, is the person mentioned by Sir John Archer, judge of the Common Pleas, in his unpublished Diary, as his son by his first wife.

"There were two coats of arms lay by not set up; a ducal one, and that of a Count, I suppose belonging to Columbus, his family proprietors of the Island." (D. of Varaguas.)

"Over the door" (of the old Spanish church at Sevilla) . . . "was our Saviour's head with a crown of thorns, between two angels; on the right side a small round figure of some saint with a knife stuck into his head; on the left a Virgin Mary or Madonna, her arm tied in three places, Spanish fashion. Over the gate, under a coat of arms, this inscription" (in Roman capitals)—

"'PETRUS. MARTIR. AB. ANGLERIA. ITALUS. CIVIS. MEDIOLANEN. PROTHON. APOS. HUIVS. INSULE. ABBAS. SENATUS. INDICI CONSILIARIUS. LIGNEAM. PRIUS. ÆDEM. HANC. BIS. IGNE. CONSUMPTAM. LATERICIO. ET. QUADRATO. LAPIDE. PRIMUS. A. FUNDAMENTIS EXTRUXIT.'

"The words are entire except Mediolanensis, which I supplied because this Peter Martir, a famous man, wrote himself of Milan."

The other is the spurious epitaph, written by the historian, Edwards, and inscribed on a piece of ordnance set up as a monument near Martha Brae.* As it has been the source of much local error, it is here given—

"STRANGER!—ERE THOU PASS, CONTEMPLATE THIS CANON!—NOR REGARDLESS BE TOLD—THAT NEAR ITS BASE LIES DEPOSITED THE DUST OF—JOHN BRADSHAW—WHO, NOBLY SUPERIOR TO ALL SELFISH REGARDS—DESPISING ALIKE THE PAGEANTRY OF COURTLY SPLENDOUR—THE BLAST OF CALUMNY—OR THE TERROR OF ROYAL VENGEANCE—PRESIDED IN THAT ILLUSTRIOUS BAND OF HEROIC PATRIOTS—WHO FAIRLY AND OPENLY ADJUDGED—CHARLES STUART—TYRANT OF ENGLAND—TO A PUBLIC AND EXEMPLARY DEATH—THEREBY REPRESENTING TO THE AMAZED WORLD—THE MOST GLORIOUS EXAMPLE—OF UNSHAKEN VIRTUE AND LOVE OF FREEDOM—AND IMPARTIAL JUSTICE—EVER EXHIBITED ON THE BLOOD-STAINED THEATRE—OF HUMAN ACTIONS—O, READER!—PASS NOT, TILL THOU HAST BLESSED HIS MEMORY—AND NEVER NEVER FORGET—THAT REBELLION TO TYRANTS—IS OBEDIENCE TO GOD."

Many of the monumental inscriptions recorded in the following pages have ceased to exist, even since the compiler noted them nine years ago. Others, such as slabs, which once occupied an honourable place, within the walls of the church, have from time to time been cast forth into the churchyard, and could no longer be recognized. In my task of restoration, I have been assisted by the "Spanish Town Church Notes, &c.," of the late Mr. Roby, whose work, however, I was not aware of when first I made my collection. To it, also, many of the purely local annotations are due.

mortuary remains. So rapidly does nature in that warm climate, and rich soil, mask the evidence of mortality, that even now tombs not dating a hundred years back, are comparatively rare, concealed as they are in many instances under the turf, as at Half-Way-Tree,* or enveloped in an impenetrable net-work of interlacing and often prickly plants.

Again, although Kingston only rose on the fall of Port Royal, yet so effectually have the sands of the Palisades swept over the tombs on that long and mournful, though beautiful, spit of land which enclosed the harbour, that while the former is comparatively rich in these remains, few are to be met with at the latter, and these few have for the most part been despoiled of their tablets for the sake of the value of the marble.

The compiler trusts that his labours as a pioneer in a comparatively new field may be taken up by some one with better opportunities, who, from this starting-point, might undertake to show the connection between these remote abodes, and the parent homes in England—and, entering into the domestic life of those early emigrants, unfold their schemes, trace their steps to local power and affluence, and, gradually commencing with individuals, proceed to communities, and then, overtaking those writers who have already ably written the political history of the West Indies, move onwards with them, in showing the course of declining and reviving prosperity in the present century.†

Retracing his steps homewards, such an author would find in the records of the State Paper Office, Diocesan Registries, and archives of the great Guilds of London, &c., many of those lost links which are still wanting in several instances to connect the colonial families, with those of the political exiles of the most troublous period of our modern national history.

* It is said that the foundations of an old Spanish chapel still exist in Half-Way-Tree Churchyard, and that underneath the present turf there are many Spanish monumental slabs.

It is a singular fact that the public has never required the production of the balance-sheet of this corps, on its final extinction, as such a document would throw a valuable light on a system by which the public funds are not the less squandered, because the accounts are formally balanced.

PARISH OF ST. CATHERINE.

THE CATHEDRAL.

THE cathedral church of St. Catherine stands in the south-east part of St. Jago de la Vega,* more commonly called Spanish Town, and occupies the site of the Spanish church of the Red Cross, which, together with an abbey, and another church, called the White Cross, was destroyed, at the capture of the town by Venables, in May, 1655.

On the outside of the west end of the cathedral tower, over the door, and under a pointed window, is this inscription, on a white marble tablet:

"D. O. M.

"This Church Dedicated to ye Service of Almighty God was thrown downe by ye dreadfull Hurricane of August ye 28th Anno Domini MDCCXII and was by ye Divine Assistance, through ye Piety and at ye expense of ye Parishioners, more beautifully and substantially rebuilt upon its old foundation in ye thirteenth year of ye Reigne of our most gracious Sovereigne Queen ANN and in ye Government of his Excellency the Lord Archibald Hamilton, in the year of our Lord MDCCXIV

Matthew Gregory, Esqr
Mr. Beaumont Pestell } Church Wardens"

Below this, on another marble slab,

"THIS TOWER WAS ERECTED,
And the above Tablet removed from the inner wall,
In the year MDCCCXVII.
His Grace the DUKE of MANCHESTER Governor.

---

* St. James of the Plains, so called from the patron saint of Spain, and its champaign situation. Long and Edwards agree in the probable correctness of the tradition, which ascribes its foundation to Diego, son of Christopher Columbus, about 1523, on the decay of New Seville, the former capital of the island, near the present village of St. Ann's Bay. Lewis, eldest son of Diego, was created Duke de Veragua, with the second title of Marquess de la Vega, derived from this town.—Edwards' West Indies.

On the east wall is the following tablet of—

"Benefactors to the Poor.

"Matthew Gregory Esq M. D. in the yr 1765, granted (under the direction of the Honble the Chief Justice, the Honble the Custos of this Precinct, and the Revd. the Rector of S. Catherine as Trustees) a yearly income to the amount of £230 for the following benevolent purposes, viz To relieve any distressed Object of this island coming to St. Jago de la Vega, To bind out poor children to trades, and to portion orphan girls at Marriage.

TO THE MEMORY OF—ANDREW ARCHDECKNE, ESQ., A NATIVE OF THE KINGDOM OF IRELAND, MANY YEARS BARRISTER AT LAW AND REPRESENTATIVE OF THIS TOWN IN THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE ISLAND. HE DEPARTED THIS LIFE ON THE 17th DAY OF AUGUST, 1763, AGED 72 YEARS, LAMENTED BY HIS FRIENDS, AND REGRETTED BY HIS RELATIONS. HIS CHILDREN, IN TESTIMONY OF THE GREAT LOVE AND AFFECTION THEY BORE HIM WHEN ALIVE, AND IN GRATITUDE FOR HIS PATERNAL TENDERNESS, HAVE ERECTED THIS MONUMENT TO THEIR FATHER, FRIEND AND BENEFACTOR.

He was of Gleveny Hall, Suffolk, and married a daughter of Francis Love Beckford, Esq., of Basing Park. For an account of the ancient family of Archdeckne, vide Banks' Baronia Anglica Concentrata, and Journals of the Kilkenny Archæological Society. Mr. Archdeckne was returned M.A. for this parish so early as 1718.

The city of Kilkenny appears, as well as Galway, to have had its own "ten tribes," thus recapitulated—

* By indenture, dated 22nd March, 1765, Dr. Gregory conveyed a house and land in Spanish Town to Mr. Edward Aldred, surgeon, upon trust for the Hon. Thomas Fearon, Chief-Justice, the Hon. William Wynter, and the Rev. Samuel Griffith, rector of the parish, and their successors, "for and towards the maintenance and support of poor persons in or from any part of the said island, and in and for putting poor boys and poor girls apprentices in the said island, and for giving portions in marriage with any poor girls in or from any part of the said island." But in the year 1792, the House having fallen into decay, an Act was passed (33 Geo. III. c. 14) vesting the messuage and land in the Hon. William Jackson, Chief-Justice, the Hon. William Mitchell, Custos, and the Rev. Robert Stanton Woodham, rector, for the purpose of sale, and for investment of the remaining proceeds and the interest therefrom to the charitable purposes before mentioned.

Of the subscribers to this tablet were Richard Welch, Chief-Justice, and William Patrick Browne, Custos. It is somewhat remarkable that of the numerous rectors of this parish there is not to be found a single memorial in the church or churchyard.

"Archdekin, Archer, Cowley, Langton, Ley, Knaresborough, Lawless, Ragget, Rothe and Shee."

Of these, "Archdekin" was of more note in the county than in the city.

According to Banks (Baronia Anglica Concentrata), the male line of Thomas le Archdekne (summoned to parliament, 14 Edw. II.) expired in the person of his grandson, Warine, who married Elizabeth, daughter of John Talbot, of Richard's Castle.

WILLIAM BEESTON, "Gent.," who had obtained large grants of land in Liguanea from Lord Windsor in 1662, was returned a member for "Cagua" (the present Port-Royal), in the first Assembly of the island, 20th Jan., 1663-4. He was four times elected Speaker of the House, viz., 9th April, 1677; 4th September, 1677; 3rd September, 1678, and 19th August, 1679, having been each time returned for Port-Royal. —Journals. He was distinguished in that office, by his resistance to the attempt of the Governor, the Earl of Carlisle, to enforce "Poynings law" (of Ireland) on the island; and his successful vindication of the privileges of the Assembly is fully detailed in the histories of Long, Edwards, and Bridges. On the 9th of March, 1692-3, having been knighted by William III., he arrived at Port-Royal with the commission of Lieut.-Governor of the island. In this situation he repelled a formidable invasion from St. Domingo, under Du Casse, who, after some predatory attacks about Port-Morant, landed 1500 men in Carlisle-Bay, but was compelled to retreat to his ships, with a loss of 700 men, after several encounters with the militia of the island, in July, 1694. In 1701 Sir William was appointed Governor, which office he held about one year, when he was superseded by Major-General Selwyn.

BOURDEN* was first returned to the Assembly as Member for Vere, 26 April, 1675. He afterwards represented St. Catherine in five Assemblies. He was then called up to the Council, where, resisting the Arbitrary measures of Christopher (Monk) 2d Duke of Albemarle, he was displaced by that Governor, but restored, on the accession of William and Mary, Feb. 22, 1688–9. On the death of the Governor, William (O'Brien) 2d Earl of Inchiquin, Jan. 16, 1691, the Government devolved upon the President of the Council, John White, who was killed at Port-Royal, in the earthquake which destroyed that place, June 7, 1692; when Bourden succeeded to the presidency of the Council, and, as President, to the chief command of the Island. In the latter he was superseded by Sir William Beeston, who arrived at Port Royal as Lieut.-Governor, on March 9, 1692–3.

* There was a Governor of the Bermudas between 1612 and 1622, of this surname, but whether of the same family as the above, is uncertain.

HERE LYES INTERR'D THE BODY OF THE HONBLE COLLLL PETER BECKFORD LATE PRESIDT. OF YE COUNCILL, SOMETIME LIEUT.-GOVR. AND COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THIS ISLAND, WHO DEPARTED THIS LIFE YE 3d APRLL 1710, IN THE 67th YEAR OF HIS AGE.

ALSO THE BODYS OF WILLM THE SON OF GEORGE BECKFORD, LATE OF EALING, IN YE COUNTY OF MIDDX, ESQ WHO DYED YE 11th DECR 1708 IN THE 18th YEAR OF HIS AGE. AND PHILLIS THE DAUGHTER OF PETER BECKFORD YE YOUNGER ESQ WHO WAS BORN YE 21st OF MAY 1708 AND DYED THE 28th DAY OF JULY FOLLOWING.

ALSO THE BODY OF PETER BECKFORD ESQR SON OF THE HONBLE COLLLL PETER BECKFORD ESQR WHO DIED THE 23d OF SEPTEMBER 1735 IN THE 62d YEAR OF HIS AGE.

LIKEWISE THE BODY OF PETER BECKFORD ESQ. JUNIOR HIS SON, WHO DYED THE 16th OF AUGUST 1737 IN THE 32d YEAR OF HIS AGE.

On the death of Governor Major-General Selwyn, on April 5th, 1702, when the Legislature was sitting, Colonel Beckford, who had a dormant commission of old date, caused himself to be proclaimed Lieutenant-Governor. In his speech to the Assembly he said, "I have gone through most of the offices of this island, though with no great applause, yet without complaint," and Bridges adds, "He carried on the business in a manner which redeemed the pledge he had given." He was succeeded in the office of Lieutenant-Governor by Lieutenant-General Thomas Handasyde, the same year. The cause of his death is thus graphically described by Bridges. "During a warm debate in the Assembly, on June 8, 1711, on the right of adjournment for a longer period than de die in diem, Peter Beckford, the Speaker (son of the President), repeatedly called to order, and was at length compelled to enforce it by adjournment. But irritation had gone so far that, when he rose to quit the chair, the Members drew their swords and held him there while the obnoxious questions in debate were put and carried. The doors were barred; the uproar was alarming; and the Speaker's father heard the disturbance in the Council-Chamber. He recognized the voice of his son crying aloud for help, and rushed into the Governor's apartment. Thomas Handasyde seized his sword, ordered the sentinels to follow him, forced the door of the Court-House, and dissolved the Assembly in the Queen's name. But the fray was fatal to the elder Beckford; in his agitation his foot slipped, and he was precipitated down the staircase, and the effects were deadly on his aged frame. His personal property amounted to £478,000, and his real estate to as much more!"

The second Peter Beckford, son and heir of the first, was elected Member of Assembly for Port Royal in 1704, and in the next Assembly, 1705, was chosen for three parishes, St. John, Westmoreland, and St. Elizabeth, but made his election for the last. He continued to serve as a Member in every Assembly of the island until his death—in the earlier Assemblies generally for St. Elizabeth, in the latter for St. Catherine. As Member for the former parish he was five times chosen Speaker, viz., 29th December, 1707, when he was also returned for three parishes; January 4, 1708-9; 11th April, 1711; 26th November, 1713; and 17th September, 1716. He was also Comptroller of his Majesty's Customs in this island. On the 3rd of February, 1730, he gave "for a school and poor house-keepers" in this parish £2000. He married Bathshua, daughter of Julines Herring, Esq., of this island, and in the "Gentleman's Magazine" for December, 1735, he is said to have died worth £300,000.

Besides the "Peter Beckford, Esq., junior," who was M.A. for Westmoreland in 1728, the Speaker left a daughter, Elizabeth, wife of the second Earl of Effingham, and mother of the Governor of this island, and also a son, William, the celebrated Lord Mayor and M.P. for the City of London, who, in his second mayoralty made the memorable reply to George III., on May 23, 1770, which the citizens thought so worthy of commemoration as to inscribe it on a most magnificent monument in their Guildhall. Medals were struck on the occasion, having on their obverse the head of "WILLIAM BECKFORD, ESQ., LORD MAYOR OF London," in a large wig, with the civic robe and chain. On the reverse a female figure, seated on a pile of books, one of which is opened, and inscribed "MAGNA CHARTA," her right hand holding "the balance," and her left a staff, with the cap of liberty thereon; motto, "TRUE TO HIS TRUST." On the exergue, "1770." He married Maria, daughter and co-heir of the Honourable George Hamilton, second surviving son of James, sixth Earl of Abercorn, by whom he had issue William Beckford, Esq., author of "Vathek" (which he wrote and published originally in French, and afterwards translated into English), and proprietor of Fonthill. In right of his mother, who was descended in a direct line from James, second Lord Hamilton, by Mary Stuart, his wife, eldest daughter of James II. of Scotland, Mr. Beckford bore, under grant of the Earl Marshal, in addition to his paternal coat (Per pale gules and azure, on a chevron argent, between three martlets or, an eagle displayed sable), on a bordure or, a double tressure flory counter flory, gules, as in the arms of Scotland. William Beckford, of Fonthill, had by his wife (daughter of the Earl of Aboyne) a daughter, Susanna Euphemia, who married the 10th Duke of Hamilton, and was grandmother of the present Duke.

His cousin, William Beckford, Esq., formerly of Somerly, in Suffolk, was the gentleman to whom Brydone addressed his very amusing "Tour in Sicily and Malta," and was himself the author of "Remarks on the Negroes in Jamaica," 1 vol., 8vo., 1788, and "A Descriptive Account of Jamaica," 2 vols., 8vo., 1790. Another of this family was author of "Thoughts upon Hare and Fox Hunting."

SACRED TO THE MEMORY OF THE HONBLE WILLIAM BLAKE ESQR. SPEAKER OF THE HONBLE HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY. HE DIED 24th JANUARY 1797 AGED 56 YEARS.

Stone Slab.

DURING the illness of Samuel Williams Haughton, Member for Hanover, the Speaker of the House, Mr. Blake, was twice elected pro tempore. He was re-elected for Westmoreland in the Assembly of 23rd March, 1790, and on the death of Mr. Haughton, (by a fall from his horse in August, 1793,) Mr. Blake was unanimously chosen Speaker, 22nd October, 1793. He was again elected for Westmoreland, and again unanimously chosen Speaker on Oct. 28th, 1796. He was succeeded in that high office by Donald Campbell, Esq., Member for St. George, who was elected 25th July, 1797.—Journals of House of Assembly.

In 1755 we find the will of Nicholas Blake, of Jamaica, and in it mention made of his brother Benjamin, and his son Nicholas Allen Blake, &c.

In 1766 is recorded the will of Samuel Blake, in which occur the names of his sons and daughters—Joseph, William, Samuel, Bonella, and Margaret.

The will of Nicholas Allen Blake, the nephew of Nicholas as above, is dated July 16, 1789, and contains bequests to his son Matthew Gregory Blake, his brother William, and his cousins the Burkes of Loughrea, in Ireland.

A few years earlier, in the will of Benjamin William Blake (1785), his nieces are named Jane Gregory and Helen Haughton, his brother-in-law Samuel Williams Haughton, and his brothers William and Nicholas Allen Blake, &c.

The first entry of this name in the parish registers of Jamaica is in 1671, and in 1717 is recorded the birth of Benjamin, the son of Benjamin and ..... Blake. In 1743 is recorded the marriage of Alexander Blake* and Hagar Williams (probably a daughter of Williams of Carowena); and still later, in the Hodges family the baptism of an Alexander Blake Hodges, the nephew of Robert Francklyn Hodges, who married a daughter of the Hon. Hugh Lewis (Ch. Justice).

Robert Francklyn Hodges, younger, of Maxfield, was so named after a Mr. Francklyn, who married his aunt, Margaret Blake.†

In so extensive a family as that of Blake, it is natural to suppose that even uncommon surnames will be frequently adopted instead of ordinary Christian names, to distinguish individuals; but when we find a double combination of this description, we attach more importance to the coincidence (?).

A reference to the pedigree of the Allens of Blackwell Grange, and a comparison of the names of Blake and Burke therein, suggests some connection with the family of Blake in Jamaica; and if so, of necessity it appears with that of Barbados, in the seventeenth century, and of another family of the name in Ireland, one of whose members, Nicholas Blake, is described as of Barbados at the period to which we allude.

* It may not be unworthy of attention, that in no other but the Taunton Blake pedigree, is the name Alexander Blake to be found. Colonel Williams, of Carowena, married Elizabeth, daughter of Colonel John Guthrie. On his decease, she married (1735) Colonel Richard Haughton. The above (Hagar) was, however, not the daughter of this Colonel Williams.

† This gentleman's seal, now in the possession of Ana Archer, wife of Rev. John Campbell, Rectory, St. Thomas in the Vale, bears on one side the initials J. F.; on the other a ship in full sail; and on the third, Arg. on a bend engrailed gu., between two dolphins naiant embowed, three lions' heads erased, of the first.

On referring, however, to the registers of Andover, we find that Nicholas Blake of that town was also of Barbados; while in the will of the wife of Nicholas Blake of Barbados (1663), we discover that her husband was also of "Bishop's Mead, near Craford, Kent."

Leaving, however, such branches of this family out of the question, and turning to the pedigree of Benjamin, Nicholas, and Alexander, three of the younger brothers of the celebrated Admiral Blake,* we find very strong presumptive evidence of its being represented in Jamaica; and this is probable, moreover, from the interest which Cromwell took in his valuable insular acquisition; and the date on the tomb of Alexander Blake, at Eaton Socon, 1690, brings the record of the Taunton family close upon modern times.

It is probable that there were two families of Blake in Jamaica, which became united in one, about the commencement of the eighteenth century.

The will of Elizabeth Blake, wife of Nicholas Blake, merchant, of London, entered (Barbados) Oct. 26, 1663, states:—"I bequeath unto my son Nicholas my land called Bishop's Mead, in the parish of Craford, county of Kent, and bought of Wm. Borman, and to his half-brother my son John Wilson, my cousins John Blake and Nicholas Prideaux, &c. Witnesses: Nicholas Prideaux, H. Turvile, Thomas Mortimer, and Hercules Tervile" (sic).

(Vide also the Baronetage; and Pedigrees of Blake at the Heralds' College and Brit. Mus., "Notes and Queries," &c. Very extensive private collections of Blake records exist.)

The name is probably identical with that of Black, and therefore has had various "centres of origin;" although, so far as we know, its earliest appearance was in Hampshire and Wilts, whence all the other recorded branches are assumed to have been derived.

In Hardiman's "History of Galway," (Dublin, 1820,) we find the following remarks:—"This family is of British extraction, and although the name seems derived from the Saxon Blac, a colour; yet Debrett, in his 'Baronetage,' says, 'they are traditionally descended from Ap Lake, one of the Knights of King Arthur's Round Table' (!). Nothing ought to surprise us after such an announcement.

"In 1651 Government caused a map of this county to be made, and on the third sheet are, amongst others, the Arms of Blake, and also, with other inscriptions, the words ('Marilandiæ, Carolinæ, Verginiæ, et Jamaicæ,' being on the second sheet with the name Marline) on the third sheet: 'Bermude, Barbude, Montserrat, et Sancti Christophore.'"

* It may be incidentally noticed that the late representative of this family, the Rev. H. J. C. Blake (descended from Humphrey Blake), possessed the sword, and an interesting original portrait of the great Admiral. The Admiral died in August, 1657, and his epitaph is given by Pettigrew.

The peculiar baptismal name (probably in compliment to some Spanish family) of Bonella, seems to have been peculiar to certain families intermarried in Jamaica. Bonella Hodges, mother to (Pennant) first Lord Penrhyn, (see "Peerage,") gave her name to the Blakes, Haughtons, Vassalls, and Archers. Through other ramifications it passed into the families of Scarlett, &c.

ANNE BERMINGHAM—ERECTED THIS MONUMENT.—HE DIED DECEMBER THE 11th 1742—AGED 48 YEARS.

THERE was a great feudal family of this name, a branch of which settled in Ireland.

The Barony of Athenry de Bermingham was the premier Barony of Ireland, and fell into abeyance on the death of Thomas, Earl of Louth, the 22nd Baron, in 1799, when the Earldom of Louth became extinct.

The Berminghams and Barnewalls were two powerful families, at an early period, in the South East of Ireland. The Barony of Kingsland in the latter, was restored in the person of a Dublin hotel waiter, but is again dormant.

There was a branch of this family, as may be seen by reference to the Inquis. P. M. of Leinster, which was twice intermarried with that of Archer of Kilkenny, at an early period; hence their coat being now quartered with others of note in the armorial achievement of The-O'Shee-of-Garden-Morris family. THE Brewsters are frequently mentioned in connection with the affairs of New England in the seventeenth century. (S. P. O.) They were also numerous in Barbados, where they intermarried with the family of Archer.*

There was a family of Raisbeck at Stockton, of which was Thomas, (temp. Carl. II.,) who married Sarah, daughter of the Rev. T. Stapylton, son of Miles Stapylton, Auditor to Cosins, Bishop of Durham (temp. Carl. II.).

THE colony of Surinam was granted by Charles II. in 1662, to Francis Lord Willoughby of Parham, and Lawrence Hyde (afterwards Earl of Rochester), second son of the great Lord Chancellor Clarendon. In 1664 the English captured the New Netherlands, the present New York, from the Dutch. In 1667 Surinam was taken by surprise by the Hollanders, under Captain Abraham

* Parish Register, Barbados. Richard Brewster and Sarah Archer married in 1681. Brewster is also named in the will of Edward Archer, of St. Philip and St. Lucy, 1693.

Criuvon, but retaken the same year by Commodore Sir John Harman. By treaty, in 1673–4, it was finally agreed that Surinam should be the property of the Dutch, in exchange for the province of New York.

Major-General Bannister appears to have been President of the Council of Jamaica in 1671, his name being first on the list of that body, as given by Sir Thomas Lynch, on August 20; and he is the first named of the Council to John Lord Vaughan, appointed by Charles II., April 3, 1674. The 51st Article of the Instructions to that Nobleman, dated 3rd December, 1674, says, "Whereas we are now providing for the removal of such of our subjects from Surinam, as shall desire to transport themselves from thence under our obedience, in pursuance of the articles made at the surrender of that colony, our pleasure is, that for the encouragement of such of our said subjects, as shall be willing to remove from Surinam, you receive and use with kindness as many of these as come to Jamaica, and take care that they be furnished with provisions and other necessaries at a moderate rate, until they shall be able to get or procure them themselves, and that you proportion out to them twice as much land as used to be granted to other planters coming thither." Accordingly, in 1675, about 1200 persons from Surinam arrived in Jamaica, and were located in that district in the parish of St. Elizabeth, which still retains the name of "The Surinam Quarters." General Bannister was murdered by a "Mr. Burford, who was tried and hanged for it."—Stedman's Narrative, Appendix to Journals, and Bridges' Annals.

Major-General J. Bannister was murdered by a Mr. Charles Burford, who was tried and convicted on the 2nd December, 1674, and hanged three days afterwards. The executioner, Edward Hackett, died the same day. (Vide Reg. of St. Cath. Parish, Jamaica.)

B. M. Slab; Arms, On a bend three roses, a mullet in sinister chief for difference.

HE was also brother to Robert Cary, author of Paleologia Chronica, born at Cockington.

For an elaborate and interesting genealogy of this family, see the Herald and Genealogist, from which periodical the following is extracted:—

"William Cary of this family had a daughter, who was married to Dr. William Helyar, and was buried in Exeter Cathedral, July, 1607. Dr. Helyar was a divine of some eminence, and claimed (I presume through his wife) kinship with Queen Elizabeth. At any rate he was her Majesty's chaplain, and probably through her, if not directly from her, received his other important preferments. He seems to have been a great pluralist in an age of pluralism, and enjoyed a prebendal stall both at Exeter and Chester, the archdeaconry of Barnstaple, the treasurership of Chelsea College, and various livings in Devon and Somerset. He died in 1645, and was, I think, buried in Exeter Cathedral; but at East Coker, in Somersetshire, he founded an almshouse and built a handsome residence, Coker Court, which his descendants have occupied in succession to the present day. The archdeacon's eldest son, Henry Helyar, formed a second connection with the Cary family. According to the Visitation of Somerset, 1672 (confirmed by Cole's Escheats), he married in 1621, Christian, daughter of William Cary of Clovelly, co. Devon, and by her had several children, amongst whom was Cary Helyar, who migrated as a merchant to Jamaica, and there died, in 1672, aged 39. His monument is in the church of Spanish Town in that island, and in the same church is another to Colonel Theodore Cary, 'one of the sons of Cockington House, co. Devon, brother to Sir Henry Cary, a judge of the Grand Court.' He died in 1683, aged 63, and was therefore contemporary with Cary Helyar; and, it is not unreasonable to conjecture, was related to him. There can be little doubt that Colonel Theodore Cary was one of the younger sons of George Cary of Cockington, of whom Prince says, that his 'youngest sons became soldiers of fortune, and died, I think, beyond the seas, without issue.' This last statement is perhaps open to queston, as the MS. I have quoted records the marriage, in 1676, of Colonel Theodore Cary with Dorothy Wale; and, in 1679, of Penelope Cary with Thomas Edward.

"The immediate cause of the rapid rise of the Cary family is to be found in its close connection with Queen Elizabeth. William Cary (second son of Thomas Cary of Chilton Foliot) married Mary Boleyne, sister of Queen Anne, and aunt of Queen Elizabeth. From this marriage descended the Earls of Dover and Monmouth and the Barons Hunsdon; while from Sir John Cary, William's elder brother, came the Viscounts Falkland, whose fame is well preserved in the annals of our country."

IT is remarkable that the names of Colbeck, who "came with ye army that conquered this island,"—of Freeman, "who was at ye takeing of this island,"—and of Fuller (buried in the Church of St. Dorothy), "one of the first takers of this island," are altogether omitted in the list of "some of the principal persons who held official situations in the expedition" under Penn and Venables, as given by Bridges, in his Appendix, Note XLIX., although the circumstance of their being among the original captors of Jamaica, is particularly recorded on their respective gravestones.—Roby.

In 1664, Captain Colbeck was distinguished during the negro rebellion of that year.

W. M. Slab; Arms, A chev. engrailed in sinister chief, a crescent. Crest, A hawk rising (with a branch in its talons).

THE Colepeper, or Culpeper family, of great antiquity in Kent, was, before the time of Edward III., divided into two branches, the claim to precedence between which has never been decided.

The above was a descendant of Walter, son of Sir John Culpeper, from whom came "the Barons Colepeper, the Colepepers of Wiggshall and Folkington, and the Colepepers of Hollingborn, &c." (Ext. Baronetage.)

This family was eminent in the seventeenth century.

B. M. Slab; Arms, A chev. between three bats volant proper. Crest, A wyvern passant.

ANTHONY COLLYER was one of the first Representatives of Jamaica, being returned to the Assembly of 20th January, 1663-4, as Member for "Seven Plantations." He was probably called up to the Council soon afterwards, as we do not find his name in the Returns of any future Assembly, and in 1671 Sir Thomas Lynch mentions him as one whom he found a Member of the Council on his arrival in this island. He was also "constituted and appointed" one of the Council by Charles II., in his Commission to the Governor John Lord Vaughan, dated April 3, 1674.

Anthony Collyer bequeathed one thousand acres to Samuel Long. Collyer's widow, Elizabeth, married secondly, Sir Francis Watson, Knt. (Major-General, Member of Congress, and President of Council), who administered the Government from the death of the Duke of Albemarle in 1688, until the arrival of the Earl of Inchiquin in 1690.

Sir Francis was buried in the chancel of Spanish Town Church, 19th August, 1691, and Lady W. on 18th April, 1698.

Probably of the same family was "Giles Collier, of Bristol, clothier," who presented Joseph Collier to the living of Steple, Longford, Wilts, 1607.

EDMUND DUCKE was Attorney-General of Jamaica in 1671. He was probably a near relative of Dr. Duck, Chancellor of London, whom the Privy Council desired, in 1637, to settle some disputes among the inhabitants of, and others connected with, the Island of St. Christopher.

There was a Sir John Duck created a Baronet in 1687, whose rise to fortune deserves a place in the romance of the Baronetage. He had a brother named Robert, and several nieces, but no issue.

Henry Cunningham, Esq., of Balquhan, Stirlingshire, was M.P. for that county several times. He was appointed Governor of Jamaica in 1734, but did not assume office before Dec. 22, 1735.

Henry Cunningham held the government only three months, and fell by "an act of his own intemperance at a public entertainment." He was a Scotchman, and favourite of Sir Robert Walpole, whom he had rescued from the mob, during the Excise Riots. ("Roby." Gentleman's Magazine. "Bridge's Annals.")

HERE LIETH THE BODY OF HILL, LATE THE WIFE OF ROBERT HOTCHKYN ESQ—OB, 1706, AET, 43; ALSO ROBERT HOTCHKYN, OB, 1709. AET 42—

ROBERT HOTCHKYN was Attorney-General of that Island. He was the eldest son of Robert Hotchkin, Esq., and Mary his wife, of Bradmore, Nottinghamshire. He was born in 1667. He married Hill, the widow of Henry Brabant, Esq., Provost-Marshal. He survived his wife, and died in 1709 without issue, leaving to his brothers in England—Thomas Hotchkin, a physician, and the Rev. John Hotchkin, Rector of Abbot's Ripton, Huntingdonshire—a very considerable property, both real and personal. Part of the former is still in the possession of one of his brother's descendants. He left £60 to the poor of the parish of St. Katharine, and desired to be buried by the side of his dear wife, Hill Hotchkin, in that church.

Hill Hotchkin, the wife of the Attorney-General, was probably of an Irish family. Her maiden name was Bolton. She first married John Childermas, the only son of a wealthy planter, also from Ireland; he died in 1699. In 1701 she again married Henry Brabant, Esq., Provost-Marshal of the Island. On the death of the Provost-Marshal she married the Attorney-General, and died shortly after, in 1706. Her third husband was laid beside her in the grave in 1709. Only ten years elapsed between the death of her first husband and that of the third, who survived her. (See the Annual Register, Aug. 15, 1775.)

Gawen Noble, of Cockermouth, had a son William, who, by his wife, Jane Senhouse, was mother of Hugh (born 1750), who, by his second wife, —— Cargill, had a son, Hugo James, appointed Attorney-General of Jamaica, who married Æmilia, daughter of Samuel Jackson, Member of Council, &c., and had, with other issue, Hugh Rees James, C.B., Commission in the Punjab, &c.

* Dr. Henry Barham, author of "Hortus Americanus," preceded Sir Hans Sloane, and was, therefore, a gatherer of information as early as 1680. He had married into the family of "Foster," of St. Elizabeth's Parish, and through it acquired a considerable fortune. It was the Foster family that introduced the Moravian Mission, to which sect Dr. H. Barham belonged. Through the Fosters he was connected with the "Stevenson" family. He retired to England in 1740, and settled at Staines, near Egham, where he died. He bequeathed his property to the youngest son of Mrs. Barham, whom he had married when the widow of Thomas Foster. Joseph Foster was the father of Joseph Foster Barham, M.P., about 1793, and who married Lady Caroline, daughter of the then Earl of Thanet. In 1794 Alexander Aikman published Dr. Barham's "Jamaica Botany," and dedicated the work to the Hon. William Blake, Speaker of the House of Assembly. The present Mr. William Thomas March, Clerk of the Crown, Jamaica, is of a family whose patronymic was Foster, who sought an asylum in the West Indies about 1715, and acquired extensive estates in the Parishes of St. Catherine, and St. Thomas-in-the-Vale; these, however, have long since been alienated. He opened a Session of the Legislature on the 8th Feb., 1774, and died 15th June, 1777, so that he must have presided more than three years and four months.

THE family of Long, of Longville, Jamaica, Hampton Lodge, Surrey, and originally from Wilts, is descended from John Longe, of Netheravon, in the latter county, who died in 1630. In 1662 he was knighted, and accompanied the Governor Thomas (Windsor) Lord Windsor, as Lieut.-Governor and Chancellor of this Island. On his lordship's departure, October 28th of the same year, the command devolved on Sir Charles, who, as "Deputy Governor," issued "an Ordinance," dated at "Point Cagua, 23d October, 1663," addressed to Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas Lynch, Provost-Marshal-General, "to have an Assembly fairly and indifferently chosen by the votes of the inhabitants of the several precincts of this Island." This Legislative Assembly, the first in Jamaica, met at the town of St. Jago de la Vega, 20th January, 1663-4.

Sir Charles left Jamaica in May, 1664. On his arrival in England, he was appointed Colonel of the Duke of York's Regiment, and in 1673, Governor of Sheerness and Languard Fort. He represented the borough of Bewdley, co. Worcester, in the reign of James II.—Roby.

THERE is recorded in Jamaica, in 1686, the will of John Lewis, whose brother, Richard Lewis, was of Shrewsbury, and of the ship "Elizabeth," of Honduras.

Samuel Lewis appears to have been the father of John Lewis, who sat in the first "Assembly" of 1722.

MISTAKE NOT READER, FOR HERE LYES NOT ONELY THE DECEASED BODY OF THE HONOBLE SR THOMAS MODYFORD BARRONETT, BUT EVEN THE SOULE AND LIFE OF ALL JAMAICA, WHO FIRST MADE IT WHAT IT NOW IS. HERE LYES THE BEST AND LONGEST GOVERNOUR, THE MOST CONSIDERABLE PLANTER, THE ABLEST AND MOST UPRIGHT JUDGE THIS ISLAND EVER INJOYED—HE DYED THE SECOND OF SEPTEMBER 1679.

HERE ALSO LYES SR THOMAS MODYFORD JUNR BARRONETT, THAT HOPEFUL AND FLOURISHING BRANCH—WHICH, THE ROOT BEING DEAD, SOONE AFTER WITHERED, WHO AS THEY LIVED IN CONTINUALL UNITY WERE NOT EVEN IN DEATH TO BE SEPERATED. HE DYED THE NINETEENTH OF OCTOBER 1679.

SIR THOMAS, by his own sole authority, twice proclaimed war against the Spaniards, but in so doing, and in his encouragement of the Buccaneers, he was countenanced by Charles II., who empowered him "to commission whatever persons he thought good to be partners with his majesty in the plunder, 'they finding victuals, wear and tear.' So that his majesty entered very seriously into the privateering business, and held this reputable partnership for some years."—Appendix to Long, vol. i.

Sir Thomas Modyford, like his brother, Sir James Modyford, Bart., was also Governor of Jamaica. He was created a baronet March 1st, 1663-4; married Elizabeth, daughter of Lewin Palmer, Esq., of Devonshire; and died in Jamaica, according to his epitaph, in 1679.

His successors matched with the families of Sir Thomas Norton, Bart., Guy of Barbados, Hathenstall of London, and lastly, of Sir William Beeston, Knt., Governor of Jamaica, whose daughter and heiress, Jane, married Sir Thomas Modyford, fifth and last Baronet, and on the death of the latter she married Charles Long, Esq., of Jamaica.

Sir Thomas, the first Baronet, was one who moved with the times, and, although a subscriber to the loyal defiance sent to the summons of Sir George Ayscue, we find him the following year assuring President John Bradshaw that his master's counsels tend to the good of the English nation (S. P. O. Cal., 1652), and that the "people of Barbadoes would delight to have the same form of government as England;" and declares that the powerful regicide had "sweetly captivated" his mind by his "unexpected civilities."

He seems to have had strong prejudices against the Irish; and was a Member of the Council of Barbados, in 1660, which decided that no Irishman was to be commander, or sharer of any boat belonging to the Island. He was afterwards Governor of Barbados.*

MARY TAAFE. (Neither date nor remark.)*

C. Y.

SHE was probably the wife of Michael Taafe. The Taaffes of Jamaica were apparently allied to the noble house of the same name in Ireland. However the local tradition may have originated, there is still enough to be gleaned from the wills of the family, in both islands, to justify a respect for it.

* Towards the close of the seventeenth century and earlier part of the eighteenth, Ireland was in so unsettled a state, that there are few parochial registers there, which may be referred to, for the confirmation of pedigrees; and the remarkable vicissitudes of the family in question, would make such difficulties insurmountable, were it not for the comparative rarity of the name itself forming a useful clue. The earliest will on record in Jamaica of this family, is that of Arthur Taafe, dated in 1750, and entered Jan. 30, 1752. In it, the testator leaves legacies to his father Christopher and his mother Mary, of the kingdom of Ireland, "if still alive." Arthur Taafe also mentions his brother, the rector of St. Thomas-in-the-Vale, Henry Taafe, and his nephew Henry Gordon. The question is, who was this Christopher Taafe? A Christopher Taaffe, of Mansfields Town, co. Louth, was attainted in 1691 at Ardee. He was an adherent of James II., in whose own regiment of infantry he was a lieutenant. "I find," says the author of a valuable work on a kindred subject,* "the chattel property of a Christopher Taaffe" (probably the above lieutenant), "sold in 1725, who, dying in Dublin in 1736, made a will, which is recorded there, from which I think that he is identical with the Christopher named in the will of Arthur Taafe of Jamaica. The latter had sons, Arthur and Henry, and I am inclined to think, that he had also a son George, who passed into

* "King James II.'s Army List annotated." It is not shown how the author came by the knowledge of Christopher, the attainted officer, having left two sons, for there is no mention in his will either of wife or children.

Connaught and settled there."* It seems, however, more probable that he was the Christopher, son of George Taaffe (Corballa, co. Meath) mentioned in the will of Stephen Taaffe, 1730. The next will is that of Henry Taafe (entered May 30, 1771). He was rector of St. Thomas-in-the-Vale, Jamaica. His sons are named: 1. Arthur Rodger, 2. John Armistead, 3. Richard Brownrigg, 4. Thomas Wheeler. He appoints John Gordon the guardian of his sons. Anne, the sister of Henry Taaffe, was married to Mr. Gordon,† said to have been originally of Enniskillen, and who was father of the Henry Gordon mentioned in the will of Arthur Taafe, his uncle. Henry Taafe names, among other bequests, "his gold watch and tortoise-shell box set in gold." In the record of his matriculation, in 1740, at Trinity College, Dublin, Henry is described as being then seventeen years of age, and the son of Christopher Taaffe.—"Generosus in Com. Derriæ." In the will of William Gordon, of St. Elizabeth, Jamaica (Nov. 27, 1759), there is a bequest to Susanna, daughter of Harry Gordon, of St. James's; and in the will of Henry Gordon, of St. James's, Jamaica, dated Jan. 18, 1788, we find references to his (mother's, Anne Taafe) claims to real and personal estate in Ireland. The next Taafe will, is that of Michael Taafe (dated May 19, 1761), of St. James's, Jamaica, in which the testator mentions his mother Anne residing at Dromisken, co. Louth. N.B.—Theobald Taafe, Earl of Carlingford, had a grant of land, in 1668, in the parish or townland of Dromisken, co. Louth. In 1762 is entered the will (dated in 1754) of Susanna Taafe, "wife of Theobald Taafe, of Hanover Square, in the parish of St. George, Middlesex, England, . . . and youngest daughter of Henry Lowe."‡

* He bequeaths his sword and pistols to his relative Theobald Taaffe (1736).

† He was twice married; his first wife is said to have been Mary Jones, a lady of the Ranelagh family. But there is another lady of this name, and the widow, about 1720, of Penn, who had inherited his father, William Penn's, Irish estate. There was also a connection by marriage between the Taaffes of Smermor, and the founder of Pennsylvania's family, while again the above-mentioned Henry Gordon married a very near relative of the Penns.—See "History of the Taaffe Family," Vienna, 1856; Notes and Queries, 1873-4; "Ulster Records," &c.

the Government of the Earl of Effingham. On that nobleman's decease, 19th Nov., 1791, he assumed the Government of the Island, in virtue of the dormant commission before mentioned. He had been previously joined by his wife, who arrived in Jamaica, from London, on Oct. 31, 1791. He continued in the government until the arrival of Alexander (Lindsay), 6th Earl of Balcarras, at Port Royal, on April 15, 1795, and on the 21st of the same month, he was invested by the hands of the earl, his successor, as Commissioner, with the ribbon and badge of the Order of the Bath. On May 9, in the same year, he left Jamaica for Port-au-Prince, having been appointed Governor-General and Commander-in-Chief of such parts of St. Domingo as then were, or hereafter might be, under the Government of Great Britain. Sir Adam died at Avesbury House, co. Wilts, Oct. 21, 1798, from the effects of a fall. He was Colonel of the 73rd Regiment.

Mrs. Williamson (for the Knighthood of the Bath was not conferred on her husband till after her death) was buried in this church, and an Act (as in the cases of the Earl and Countess of Effingham) passed the Legislature, to indemnify the Rev. R. S. Woodham, the rector, from the penalties imposed by the Law of 1789, for burying in churches.

THE LORD GAVE AND THE LORD HATH TAKEN AWAY, BLESSED BE THE NAME OF THE LORD.

Job, 1st Chapter, 21st verse.

MAJOR DARLEY'S death is thus related in the "Continuation to Edwards' West Indies:" "Fifty-four Chamba and Koromantyn negroes, who had been purchased to serve in the Colonial corps, broke out into mutiny at Fort Augusta, while under drill, and massacred two of their officers, Major Darley and Lieutenant Ellis, who rode up to them to inquire into the cause of the tumult. They were speedily chastised for their disobedience and barbarity. Fifteen of them were killed on the spot, five were wounded, and seven were afterwards executed. The reason which they assigned for their conduct was, that they were too often drilled, and that they were desirous of returning to their native country." The date is incorrectly stated as August instead of May, 1808, and the Report of the Committee of Assembly says "that the mutiny was not by any means confined to the recruits, but that many of the old soldiers, if not openly and directly concerned in it, did persuade and excite the troops to mutiny." The "Chronology" of the "Jamaica Almanack" is more correct in its detail: "1808, May 27. Recruits of the 2nd West India Regiment mutinied on parade: Lieutenant and Adjutant Ellis was killed, and Major Darley died of the wounds he received. Nine of the mutineers were killed; one died of wounds; fifteen were tried by a court-martial, and found guilty; seven of them were shot." The reader, desirous of further particulars, may consult the 12th vol. Journals of House of Assembly, where the examination of many witnesses is given at length. The "Violation of the privileges of the Assembly, in the case of Major-General Carmichael, commanding his Majesty's forces in this island," (who had directed the officers under his command not "to answer any questions that the Legislative Body of this island might put upon the subject of a late mutiny, or upon the government or discipline of his Majesty's forces,") has been inserted by Mr. Aikman, sen., in an Appendix to his re-publication in 1810 of "The Privileges of Jamaica vindicated," in the case of John Olyphant, Esq., a Member of Assembly.

The major was brother to Alderman Darley, of Dublin, of Orange notoriety.—Roby.

HERE LYES THE BODY OF LEWIS GALDY ESQR, WHO DEPARTED THIS LIFE AT PORT ROYAL, THE 22d DECEMBER 1739 AGED 80 YEARS. HE WAS BORN AT MONTPELIER IN FRANCE, BUT LEFT THAT COUNTRY FOR HIS RELIGION, AND CAME TO SETTLE IN THIS ISLAND, WHERE HE WAS SWALLOWED UP IN THE GREAT EARTHQUAKE IN THE YEAR 1692, AND BY THE PROVIDENCE OF GOD, WAS BY ANOTHER SHOCK THROWN INTO THE SEA, AND MIRACULOUSLY SAVED BY SWIMMING UNTIL A BOAT TOOK HIM UP: HE LIVED MANY YEARS AFTER IN GREAT REPUTATION, BELOVED BY ALL THAT KNEW HIM, AND MUCH LAMENTED AT HIS DEATH

THIS remarkable inscription is copied from a note in Edwards' "West Indies," and in the text of Bridges' "Annals." Both writers have incorrectly transcribed the date of Galdy's death, stating it to have occurred in 1736 instead of 1739. Mr. Galdy was an affluent merchant of Port Royal, Member of Assembly for St. Mary, 29th December, 1707; for Port Royal, 4th January, 1708-9; for St. George, 17th April, 1711; for Port Royal, 17th September, 1716, and for St. Anne, August 1, 1718, besides sitting in other Assemblies for which there are no returns.—Journals; Roby.

Mr. Galdy probably exaggerated the circumstances of his escape, especially as there was no one left to contradict his statement.

A YOUTH WHOSE RARE ENDOWMENTS BY NATURE, IMPROVED BY EDUCATION, AND CONFIRMED BY THE EXAMPLE AND INSTRUCTION OF HIS COMMANDER, COMMODORE JOHN THOMAS DUCKWORTH, GAVE THE FAIREST PROMISE TO HIS COUNTRY (HAD IT PLEASED THE ALMIGHTY TO SPARE HIS LIFE), OF A DISTINGUISHED CHRISTIAN HERO, AND TRUELY VALUABLE MAN, INITIATED IN THE PROFESSION OF HIS CHOICE. WITH THESE ADVANTAGES, HE SERVED ON BOARD THE ORION, IN THE MEMORABLE ACTION OF THE 3^{d} OF JUNE 1794, AND SHARED, WITH SINGULAR MERIT, IN THE GLORIES OF THAT IMPORTANT DAY. WITH EQUAL GALLANTRY, BUT LESS PROPITIOUS FORTUNE, UNDER THE SAME RESPECTABLE OFFICER, ON THE 21st OF MARCH 1796, HE WAS ENGAGED IN THE ATTACK MADE BY THE LEVIATHAN, AND AFRICA, ON THE FORTS OF LEOGANE, IN THE ISLAND OF ST DOMINGO, BUT YIELDING ALAS! TO THE FATIGUES OF THAT DISASTROUS SERVICE, SUCCEEDED BY THE PREVAILING MALADY OF THE CLIMATE, HE CLOSED A BRILLIANT CAREER OF HONOUR AND VIRTUE, IN THE 17th YEAR OF HIS AGE.

IF HARD INDEED HIS LOT, AND PREMATURE HIS FALL, DEPRIVED IN THAT AWEFUL MOMENT OF THE CONSOLING CARE OF HIS DEAREST RELATIVES, YET HAPPY AT LEAST IN THIS, THAT WITH FACULTIES UNIMPAIRED, AND HOPEFUL OF THE BLISS WHICH AWAITED HIM, HE BREATHED HIS LAST IN THE ARMS OF HIS PROTECTOR AND FRIEND, AND WAS ATTENDED TO THE GRAVE, BY THE UNFEIGNED TEARS, AND HEARTFELT SIGHS OF THE COMPANIONS OF HIS NAVAL FORTUNES— THE ZEALOUS ADMIRERS OF HIS EXCELLENCE AND CHARACTER.

UNDERNEATH THIS MARBLE—ARE INTER'D THE REMAINS OF—THE HONOURABLE JAMES LAWRENCE—OF FAIRFIELD IN THE PARISH OF ST. JAMES, ESQ.—WHO DEPARTED THIS LIFE—IN THE YEAR OF OUR LORD—1756—IN THE 47th YEAR OF HIS AGE—HE WAS BURIED THERE 16th JUNE.

COLONEL JAMES LAWRENCE was Custos Rotulorum of St. James's parish. By his wife Mary, daughter of Colonel Richard James, of Hanover (the first child born of English parents in Jamaica after its conquest), he had a numerous family.

Richard James Lawrence, his eldest son, married Mary, fourth daughter of Thomas Hall, of Kirkpatrick, a Member for the parish of Westmoreland in 1752. He died in London, Nov. 8, 1830, aged eighty-five years. Mr. R. J. Lawrence had five sons, viz., 1. James; 2. George; 3. Charles (who had issue: 1. G. H. Lawrence, 2. Rev. C. W. Lawrence, 3, Major-General A. Lawrence); 4. Henry; 5. Frederick Augustus, Captain, and Gentleman of the P. Chamber to King George IV., when regent.

His eldest son was the late (Sir) James Lawrence, Knight of Malta, and author of several works, one of which, on the "Nobility of the British Gentry," is well known. George, the second son, was the late proprietor of Cowsfield House, near Salisbury.*

---

* Lineage:—Henry Lawrence, President of the Council of State, under Cromwell, was of St. Ives, in Huntingdonshire, and came of an ancient family, a long account of which is to be found in the Gentleman's Magazine (1815 and 1829), Sir Egerton Brydge's edition of Milton, and other works. He married Amy, only daughter and heiress of Sir Edward Peyton, of Isleham (vide the "Extinct Baronetage"), and died in 1664. One of his daughters married an Earl of Barrymore, while John—one, it is believed, of his seven sons—emigrated to Barbados, with John Bradshaw, nephew of the regicide, and ultimately removed to Jamaica, about 1675. His (J. L.'s) will is dated May 10th, 1690. By his wife Jane, daughter of —. Collins, and relict of Richard Dunn, of Cabrete, he had three sons, of whom the eldest, John, married Susanna Petgrave, and by her, had six sons and three daughters. His third son, James Lawrence, of Fairfield, was the ancestor, as already stated, of the late (Sir) James Lawrence. 1. The eldest daughter of John Lawrence and Susanna Petgrave was named Susanna. She married Lawrence Lawrence,* of a New England family (of his family there are records elsewhere), and had, with other children, Rachel, who married Henry Gordon,† and was mother of Anne Gordon, who, by her husband Alexander Edgar (buried in Edinburgh in 1820), had a numerous issue, and who is mentioned in the curious genealogical will of her

* His will recorded in Jamaica, 1753. N.B.—The author is only responsible for the above lineage from 1690.

† His will recorded in Jamaica, 1789. (Vide "Taaffe Notes.") Alexander Edgar was the son of Alexander Edgar of Auchingramont, by his wife Margaret, daughter of James Edgar. His father (born 1698) was the brother of Peter Edgar, of Bridgelands, Peebles (father-in-law of Sir H. Raeburn, the celebrated artist). Their mother's maiden name was Priscilla Handasyde. (For a notice of the latter peculiar surname vide Sinclair's "Survey, Parish of Hutton, Berwickshire.") aunt, the late Mrs. Catherine Franklyn, who died in London in 1831. 2. Rachael, the second daughter of John and Susanna Lawrence, married Jeremiah Downer. 3. Mary, the youngest daughter of John and Susanna Lawrence, married Philip Auglin, and had a daughter, Elizabeth, who married, in 1765, Robert Scarlett, and was the mother of James Scarlett, created Baron Abinger. This very extensive family of Lawrence is necessarily connected with numerous other families,* more or less well known, and the records substantiating the descent of its various branches have been carefully preserved in Jamaica and elsewhere, but are of too voluminous a character to be enlarged upon here. However, a good account of them is to be found in part iii. of Roby's "History of the Parish of St. James,"† who has, however, omitted several descents.

† After the annotator had made his collection, in 1857, he met with this portion of the work, but failed to discover the others.

Arms, King William III., as a mark of estimation of his services, granted him an augmentation of his arms, by adding sheaves of arrows, to the original bent bows.

JOHN BENBOW was born at Shrewsbury, in 1650. His gallantry in an action with Barbary pirates, gained for him, through the recommendation of the King of Spain, a commission in the British navy, shortly after which, he was entrusted with the command of a fleet.*

In 1702, during an engagement with the French Admiral, Du Casse, he was struck in the leg by a chain-shot. Of this wound he died, but not before he had brought to justice the treacherous captains who had abandoned him in the fight.†

* It is known, however, that there was a family of this name, in the parishes of St. Elizabeth and St. James, Jamaica, which came from the north of Ireland (Enniskillen), and which was probably derived from the house of Earlston. There are several curious wills of persons of this name, recorded in Jamaica; and others of the usual description. William Gordon, of St. Elizabeth, leaves bequests to Susanna, daughter of Harry Gordon, of St. James. Robert Gordon (1768), then living in Flanders, bequeaths his real property, within the diocese of Canterbury, and also in Jamaica, to his brothers John and William, and his daughters Susanna and Rebecca. Thomas Gordon (entered 1748) mentions his wife Anne; his children Susanna, Anne, John, and William; and appoints Dr. William Gordon, M.D., of Bristol, executor. Henry Gordon dated Jan. 18, 1788): this is what may be called a genealogical will, and shows the connection between the families of Gordon and Lawrence. Alexander Gordon (dated June 8, 1750) mentions Charles Gordon, of Blelack, Aberdeenshire, and his sister Helen, wife of Hugh Ross, of Fillus (?).* Charles Gordon (1755) mentions his brothers John of Edinburgh and Thomas of Aberdeen, and his sisters Jane, Susanna, &c. James Gordon (1766) names his "brother Harry Gordon in H.M.'s service." William Gordon (1766) styles his father Robert Gordon of Auchendolly. Robert Gordon, in 1664, mentions his half-sister Catherine Nairn, wife of William Stewart, of Croft Barn, Glenlivet, Banffshire. These are only a few of the Gordon wills in Jamaica. Among their estates, was one not far from Kingston, called Gordonstown (where there is now a post-office), also Armagh, and St. Andrew's Hill.

James Irving, the younger, was Custos of Trelawny, and represented that parish, in the Assemblies of 1774, 1781, 1787, 1790, and 1796. This was a branch of the family of Irving of Robgill Tower, Dumfriesshire, represented by Sir Paulus Aemelius Irving, Bart.

KINGSTON PARISH CHURCH (YARD).

THE FIRST FOUR ARE FRAGMENTS ON THE CHURCH DOOR-STEPS.

IN front of the principal entrance by the north transept, is a large black marble slab, worn by feet, and without an inscription. The story is, that it is "turned on its face, to conceal the epitaph of an early rector of the parish, who was hanged, for coining counterfeit doubloons in the vestry. It is said he was discovered, in consequence of having issued one from his mint, before it was quite cold." The story is most improbable.

SPRING PATH CONSECRATED GROUND, KINGSTON.

"SPRING PATH," or "The Consecrated Ground," is one of the oldest graveyards in the Parish of Kingston, and faces the railway station. Its appearance is very remarkable, for each tomb, being covered with a dense green mantle of a small hardy plant—like a robust chickweed—the crabweed*, its general contour is preserved, although softened, so that the whole, chequered by the shadow of the light foliage of the cashaw-tree, presents the appearance of groups of verdant little hillocks.

SIR N. LAWES was appointed Governor of Jamaica, and received the honour of Knighthood in 1717. He was succeeded by the Duke of Portland in 1722, and died in 1731. He was an enterprising planter. Of his parentage little is known, and, like many self-made men, he is somewhat reserved on the subject. In his will (1 Aug., 1730), he styles himself, "late of Isleworth, in Middlesex," and states that he "was born in the year of our Lord, 1632, of honest and loyal parents, who suffered considerably for their loyalty."

Amongst his estates in Jamaica, may be enumerated Snowhill, Mount James, Swallowfield, and Temple Hall.*

He was five times married :—1. To Elizabeth Potter (St. Andrew's Register, May 20, 1680) ; 2. To Frances, daughter of Paul Godwyn Carter, son of Francis, Bishop of Hereford (May 23, 1685) ; 3. To Elizabeth, daughter of Sir T. Modyford, and widow of Col. S. Barry (July 2nd, 1693) ; 4. To Susanna Temple, by whom he had two sons :—1. James (above), baptized 1697. Mem. of A. in 1721—2. Temple, baptized Feb. 26, 1699 ; 5. Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Thos. Lawley (3d Bart.), by his wife, Catherine, daughter and co-heiress of Sir H. Winch, Bart., and widow of Thos. Cotton, great-grandson of Paul Beilby, Lord Wenlock.—By this wife Sir N. Lawes had a daughter, Maria, married in 1737, to Simon Luttrell, created Baron Irnham, and, in 1785, Earl of Carhampton.

The following epitaph, on a slab in the church of Isleworth, further explains these family connections :—

"In the name of God, Amen.—Here lieth the body of Susanna, late wife of—Nicholas Lawes, Esq. She was 5th daur. of—Thomas Temple, of Franckton, in the county of Warwick, Esq.

"She was first married to Samuel Bernard,—to whom she left one son, Thomas Bernard,—now of the Inner Temple, Esquire ;—to the said Nicholas Lawes, two sons, James—and Temple, whom God preserve.—She departed this life for a better the 20th—day of April, in the year of the Lord, 1707,—in the 47th year of her age."

"BLESSED ARE THEY WHO DIE IN THE LORD."

THE Bennetts (of Dorsetshire origin) were settled, soon after the capture of Jamaica, at Barbican, in Liguanea. The founders of the family appear to have been Henry Bennet (will, 1666) and the Honble. George Bennett (will, 1678). The latter was Member of Assembly for Kingston, and colonel of militia, as were also his son and grandson, of the same name.

An interesting narrative, concerning the assassination of a member of this family, is given in the "Gentleman's Magazine," for May, 1751. [See also Notes and Queries, 5th ser. ii. 349.]

Arms, Gules, an inescutcheon, argent. In chief, three birds close: impaling, azure, an eagle displayed, argent. Crest, Over an esquire's helmet, a bird close. Motto, "Nec sorte nec fato." The impalement in the engraving is transposed.

ERECTED BY THE 2nd BATTN. 60th RIFLES, TO THE MEMORY OF LIEUT.-COLONEL AUGUSTUS FREDERICK ELLIS, SECOND SON OF LORD SEAFORD, WHO DIED IN THIS ISLAND IN COMMAND OF THAT REGIMENT, 16th AUGUST, 1841, AETAT. SUAE 41.

Arms, Quarterly; 1 & 4, [or], on a cross sable, five crescents [argt.]; 2 & 3, gules, on a bend, [argt.], [3 trefoils, slipped vert.]: impaling, argent, a shake fork [between 3 fleurs-de-lys] sable. Crest, A goat's head erased. Motto, "Non modo sed quo-modo." (A Sarcophagus.)

VIDE Burke's "Peerage," voce "Howard de Walden." The family of Ellis was originally from Wrexham, county Denbigh, and it is asserted, in the Peerages of Lodge, Burke, and De Brett, that John Ellis was a colonel in the army at the taking of Jamaica, in 1655, and married Grace, sister of Wm. Nedham, Speaker of Assembly. But these statements are incorrect, as there was no officer of that name and rank in Venable's force. A John Ellis, captain in 1685, was Member of Assembly in 1688, and many years subsequently. He settled on the estate known as "Ellis' Caymanas," and was buried 1st Sept., 1706, being then, according to the Parish Register of St. Catherine, a "maiger." It was his eldest son, John, who married Elizabeth Grace Nedham. The son of the latter was Chief-Justice George Ellis, who introduced the valuable Guinea grass into Jamaica. Charles Rose Ellis, elder son of the Chief-Justice, was created Baron Seaford 15th July, 1826, and died in 1845, when his elder son, Charles Augustus (in right of his mother, Baroness Howard de Walden), succeeded.

Lord Seaford's younger son, Augustus Frederick, married 25th June, 1828, a daughter of Sir David Cunynghame, Bart., and died Lt.-Colonel of the 60th regiment,* as above stated in his epitaph.—See Peerage, "Howard de Walden."

Altar Tomb.

THIS is the common grave of two Officers, who fell by each other's hands, in a duel, as some say; but the real circumstances are these. The deceased, above commemorated, was forced into the duel and fell by the challenger's pistol. The latter, however, being seized with remorse, committed suicide, whereupon both were interred in the same grave. Beside this tomb is another without any tablet or inscription. They are erected outside the ordinary cemetery, and in a secluded spot.

THE Church, in an architectural point of view, is very poor and inelegant; and like most of the older parish churches of Jamaica, is in the style so prevalent after the time of Sir C. Wren, whose preference for classical models, in inferior copyists, led to the general corruption of taste, which reached its culminating point during the reign of George the Third.

EDWARD LASCELLS was the third son of Captain James Lascells [St. Andrew's Reg., ob. Feb. 4, 1693], by his wife, Rebecca, [ob. Oct. 20, 1691]. The baptisms, and burials of several other children of the latter, are entered in the Reg. of St. Andrew's Parish.

There is a coat of arms over the above epitaph, but the blazon of it has not been obtained. This family is a branch of that, of the Earls of Harewood.

2. The same arms with supporters—Two leopards chained and collared. Motto, "In hoc signo vinces."

ON the death of the second Baronet, Sir S. R. B. Taylor, who died unm. 18th May, 1815, his extensive estates descended to his eldest sister, Anna Susanna, whose husband, George Watson, Commissioner of Excise, assumed the name of Taylor, and soon ran through his fortune. (See BURKE'S "Dormant and Extinct Baronetage.")

"Simon Taylor," says Dr. Miller, "probably exercised greater influence in Jamaica, and for a longer period than any other individual, not even excepting the Prices. His father is said to have been a Scotchman, who came to Jamaica to follow his trade as a carpenter, which he did with such effect, as to leave £20,000 to each of his two sons. Simon Taylor died at Port Royal, leaving behind him the greatest fortune which, perhaps, any West Indian had ever accumulated. He was buried at his pen in Liguanea, where his brother had been previously interred, but from a subsequent sale, it was thought proper to remove the bodies afterwards to Lysons, in St. Thomas in the East. This was done in not a very decent manner, on a common mule cart."—Memoir of Lt. Gov. Morrison, in Kingston Chronicle newspaper.

There was another, and distinct, family of this name in Jamaica, descended from one of the Pilgrim Fathers, and which intermarried with many well-known old families in the island.

This family, now represented by J. Morant, Esquire, of Brockenhurst, Hants, is distinguished by its noble alliances, for which the reader is referred to Burke's "Peerage," "Dictionary of Landed Gentry," &c. See Pedigree.

NOT improbably a member of the family of Morris, of Keldgate Gate, Yorkshire; the elder branches of which, on the breaking out of the second American war, lost their hereditary property in New England.

The founder of this family in the New World, appears to have been Captain Lewis Morris, a servant of the Providence Island Company, in 1633.

In 1652, when Prince Rupert was threatening the British colonies, the Governor of Barbadoes recommends to the Council of State the appointment to the command of a squadron, to oppose him, "Colonel Lewis Morris, whose personal valour at Scilly was taken notice of."

(Verses follow.)

THIS family appears to have been of Scottish origin—probably from Peffermyln, near Edinburgh, of which Alexander Edgar was a subscriber to the Darien scheme. On the failure of the latter several of those emigrants settled in Jamaica. Amongst the refugees were—Colonel Blair, Colonel Dowdell, who had served under William III., at the Boyne, and Colonels Guthrie and Campbell, &c.

8.

SACRED TO THE MEMORY OF JOHN HODGES, ESQ., WHO DEPARTED THIS LIFE, THE 27th OF FEB., 1787, AGED 53 YEARS.

M.

THE name of Hodges is frequently met with in the earlier history of our West India colonies.

In 1690, Anthony Hodges was Lieutenant-Governor of Montserrat; and about the same period, there was an Anthony Hodges, Judge of the Admiralty Court. The name is found also in connection with warlike expeditions from the Island of Nevis.

The Hodges' of Jamaica, appear to have descended from Francis Hodges, Secretary of Nova Scotia, who became Treasurer of the former island in the time of Charles II., where he may have acquired estates named Acadia, and Luana, in the parish of St. Elizabeth. This gentleman was probably related to the Rev. Dr. Hodges, Chaplain to the House of Lords, at the Restoration.

A writer in "Notes and Queries," seems to be of opinion, that the family in question sprang from Sir Nathaniel Hodges, of Middlesex.

Of the same family was, probably, Sir W. Hodges, created a Baronet in 1697, but his line became extinct on the death of Sir Joseph Hodges, in 1722.

Nathaniel Hodges, an eminent physician, and son of Dr. Thomas Hodges, Dean of Hereford, distinguished himself in his professional capacity, during the Great Plague of London. He was author of a work intitled "Loimologia;" but getting into difficulties, he died in Ludgate prison, in 1684.

The will of Joseph Hodges (1718, I. S. Off. Jamaica), of St. Elizabeth, tends to throw some light on this subject. He mentions his sons Nathaniel and Joseph, and his daughter Bonella—so named after her mother. The subsequent letters of administration of Andreise Joseph Hodges, brother of Nathaniel Hodges, show that he was then lately of Eaton, in Berks., of the Inner Temple, and of Lacovia plantation, Jamaica. In this document (entered Sept. 22, 1733) is mentioned, among other relatives, his cousin John Hodges, progenitor of Hodges of Maxfield, Member of Assembly in 1795.*

There are many other wills of Hodges' and Blakes, bearing on the family connections, which are interesting in a genealogical point of view; while the "Renunciation" of John Hodges, of Maxfield (whose first wife was Anne Blake), of his executorship, under the will of Richard Haughton James (1781), grandson of Samuel Williams Haughton, by his wife, Margaret Bonella, daughter of William and Elizabeth Blake, still further elucidates a connection of which present limits forbid a lengthier discussion. This John Hodges was a cousin of Bonella Hodges, who married the father of the first Lord Penrhyn; his father, Captain John Hodges, having been the son of Thomas Hodges, uncle of Joseph the father of Bonella.

See General Notes. Also, M. I. of Lt.-Col. B. Andreiss, of Lacovia, ob. 1710.

TO THE MEMORY OF THE SEVEN BELOVED CHILDREN AND ONE GRANDCHILD OF THE REVD. WM. FRASER, A.M., RECTOR OF THIS PARISH, AND ELIZABETH LUCY, HIS WIFE. THIS WAS ERECTED BY HIM IN THE EIGHTIETH YEAR OF HIS AGE, 1843.

THE Rev. William Fraser, Rector of Trelawney, second son of Francis Fraser, Esquire of Findrack, co. Aberdeen, was born at Findrack, Dec. 22d, 1763, and died at Falmouth, Jamaica, April 1st, 1844. He was educated at Aberdeen, and subsequently at Oxford. He married Elizabeth Lucy, daughter of .... James, of Jamaica. (See Notice of the family of James.)

The family of Findrack show a descent from Sir Alexr. Fraser of Durris, Lord High Chamberlain of Scotland, in the reign of King Robert the Bruce. The Revd. W. Fraser's mother was, Henrietta, daughter of William Baird of Auchmedden, Chief of that name, and great grand-daughter of Lady Katherine Hay, daughter of George, 2d Earl of Kinnoull, through whom the family of Findrack represents the heirs of line of George, 1st Earl of Kinnoull, and as such, the dormant Viscounty of Dupplin, of date 4th May, 1627. (See Burke's "Peerage," voce Kinnoull: "Landed Gentry v. Fraser;" and "An Account of the Family of Baird"—Edinb. 1856.)

(Ab.) MISS GRACE THARP, DAUGHTER OF CAPTAIN JOHN THARP, MARINER, AND MARGARET THARP, HIS WIFE, OB. 1796.

THE family of Tharp, or Tharpe, was of considerable local distinction. (See Burke's "Landed Gentry.")

William Tharpe, of Tap River Estate, (eldest son of Joseph Tharpe, of Bachelor Hall, first settler of the name, in Jamaica,) married Ann, daughter of Jonathan Haughton (from Barbados), by his second wife, Mary Dehany. Mary, the elder sister of Ann Haughton, married John Brissett, of Hampshire estate, also the first settler of his family in Jamaica.

(Ab.) DR. WILLIAM ELLIS, OF FENCHURCH STREET, LONDON,—OB. 1802.

IT does not appear whether Dr. Ellis was of the old Jamaica family, said by Roby, and others, to have been originally from Denbighshire, and which was founded by Captain John Ellis, an officer in the expedition under Venables, in 1655, and who was ancestor of the present Lord Howard de Walden, and Seaford.

There was also a Colonel Gershom, Gerthon, or Gershon Ely, or Elys. He represented the parishes of St. Mary, St. James, St. Thomas in the Vale, and St. Ann (in which latter he died, in 1738) from 1711 to 1737. He seems to have possessed much local influence, and it is recorded that, at his marriage with Mary Willis [10 June, 1712], "his Excellency my Lord Archibald Hamilton," was present.

These names, Ellis and Elys, may possibly have been one and the same family, hence the introduction of this note.

On the 16th April, 1740, the Assembly, on petition, granted her a pension of £100 per annum, for her life, in consideration of the services of her late husband, who lost his life in an expedition against the Windward rebels, and because the sum of £1500 granted to him for his services against the Leward rebels (Trelawny Town Maroons), not having been paid, had become the property of his creditors.—Journals, vol. 3, p. 513.

She married, secondly, 15th November, 1741, Robert Delap, Member for Westmoreland, 1745-6, and Provost-Marshal, 1750. He died 11th November, 1751. She was a third time married.

TO THE MEMORY OF THE HONOURABLE JOHN LEWIS, WHO DEPARTED THIS LIFE, ON THE 17th SEPTEMBER, 1820, IN THE 71st YEAR OF HIS AGE. HE WAS FOR MANY YEARS, A REPRESENTATIVE IN THE HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY, AND CUSTOS ROTULORUM OF THE PARISH OF WESTMORELAND, — CHIEF JUSTICE OF THIS ISLAND, AND PRESIDENT OF HIS MAJESTY'S COUNCIL.

THE above was the relative of M. G. Lewis.—N.B. It was this C. J. Lewis, and not C. J. Hugh Lewis, whose daughter married into the family of Hodges, as erroneously stated elsewhere.

TO THE MEMORY OF MRS. MARY LEWIS, WHO DEPARTED THIS LIFE, NOVEMBER 18th, 1813, AGED 61 YEARS: — A TENDER MOTHER, AN AFFECTIONATE WIFE, AND FAITHFUL FRIEND, BELOVED AND LAMENTED. — THIS MONUMENT IS ERECTED AS A TRIBUTE OF AFFECTION, BY HER DUTIFUL CHILD, ANNE KATHERINE HODGES.

THE above had a son, John Goodin Lewis, attorney-at-law. — At the beginning of the eighteenth century there seem to have been two distinct families of the name of Lewis.* The more distinguished, was that settled in the parish of Westmoreland, whereof was John Lewis, Member of Assembly for St. Elizabeth, in 1702; Odoardo Lewis, Member of Assembly for the parishes of Westmoreland and St. Elizabeth, 1702-7; and an Andreiss Lewis, named probably after Colonel B. Andreiss, of Lacovia, who was buried 28th Oct., 1733, and was succeeded by his son Odoardo Lewis, bapt. in 1732.

We next find William Lewis, who, by his wife, Jane, daughter of Dr. Matthew Gregory, had one son and four daughters.†

Matthew Lewis, the son, became Under Secretary of State for War, and married a daughter of Sir T. Sewell, Knt., Master of the Rolls, &c., by whom he had two sons and two daughters:—1. William, who died young; 2. Matthew Gregory Lewis, who succeeded to the family estates, and was better known as the author of "The Monk." Dying unmarried, "Monk" Lewis bequeathed his estate of Cornwall to his elder sister, Frances Maria, wife of Sir Henry Lushington, 2d Bart., and a moiety of Hordley to his younger sister.

* Chief Justice Hugh Lewis was the first of his family in Jamaica, and came originally to the island as a merchant's clerk.

† Two of these married men of note, on the same day, [April 8th, 1783, in St. Catherine's parish]—Elizabeth Catherine, to Genl. Robert Brownrigg, Captor of Kandy; and Mary, to Genl. John Whitelocke, vanquished a Buenos Ayres.

THIS Henry, who was also a Member for St. Elizabeth in 1760, 1765, and 1766, and married, 25th October, 1764, Elizabeth Williams, (she remarried 24th May, 1770, William Harvie of St. Dorothy, Member for St. Elizabeth, 1774 and 1781) was great-grandson of Jonathan Gale, who patented, 28th April, 1673, five hundred and thirty-three acres, in Wel. Savanna, in St. Elizabeth's, with other lands in that parish. His son, Jonathan, was Colonel and Custos of St. Elizabeth, Member for that parish in 1708-9 and 1711; for Westmoreland, 1715 to 1726-7, and was buried in St. Elizabeth's in 1727; and his elder son, a third Jonathan, was father of Custos and Colonel Henry.

John Gale, an uncle of Henry, was Member for St. Elizabeth, in 1731 and 1732-3, and was buried in that parish, 14th June, 1738, being then a Major.

Eleanor Gale, an aunt of Henry, so named after her mother Eleanor, wife of the second Jonathan, (she was buried in St. Elizabeth's, 16th October, 1725), married in St. Catharine's, 22nd August, 1727, Colonel Robert Phillips of St. Andrew's, Member for that parish in 1738 and 1745-6. THE first person of this name in the Island, married the daughter of Leonard Clayborne, Member for St. Elizabeth in 1698, and Colonel of its regiment, who was slain, while opposing the invasion of the French, under Du Casse, in 1694.

He was a Darien refugee.

These Campbells are supposed to have been a branch of the Scottish house of Auchenbrack.

There were several Campbells who rose to eminence in Jamaica, and intermarried with some good families. Donald Campbell, private Secretary to Governor Campbell, and Speaker of the House of Assembly after William Blake, married Frances Gent, widow of Ballard Beckford, eldest son of Thomas, second son of Governor Peter Beckford.

BARBADOS.

BARBADOS.

THERE are probably few of our colonies more carefully *mis*represented, and consequently less known, than those in the Caribbean Sea. For many years past, public attention has been so slightly directed to the West India Islands, that an apology seems required when one introduces the subject. No good artist has as yet made familiar to Northern eyes, the grandeur and marvellous beauty of those tropical scenes, although, now and again, some thin volume about our neglected interests slightly stirs the surface of popular attention, with "governmental theories," and "colonial practice,"—the "decay of the white," and the "growth and claims of the brown man," &c.

But the West Indies, although they may have lost much of their political and commercial importance, retain their historic interest, and offer to the genealogist, interested in the seventeenth century, an almost totally unexplored field of investigation. Their parish registers, wills, and monumental inscriptions,* would probably afford much valuable information, on the subject of social and family history, during that century, when, as is well known, men of birth and distinction left the mother country, to avoid religious and political intolerance, or to repair their fortunes.†

A cursory glance at the "Peerage and Baronetage" will probably suffice to show, that at least thirty hereditary titles have originated in these islands; while the landed gentry are largely recruited from the same locality,—facts the more remarkable, when we consider the prejudices of the present generation.‡

The parochial and other records of Barbados are especially rich in historical names, and it is to be regretted that no arrangement has ever been made to have copies of them (at any rate up to the year 1750) deposited in England, where they would form a valuable addition to existing records, at the State Paper Office, and be preserved against the recurrence of such destruction as overtook many of them, during the hurricanes of Barbados; and elsewhere, from the yet more insidious dangers of the Vestry.

* A few of these were contributed by the author, to the "Gentleman's Magazine."

† Macaulay.

‡ In 1661 the following Barbadian gentlemen were created Baronets, viz., John Colleton, James Modiford, James Drax, Robert Danvers, Robert Hacket, John Yeamans, Timothy Thornhill, John Witham, Robert Legard, John Worsum, John Rawdon, Edwyn Stede, and Willoughby Chamberlayne. [See "Baronetage."]

Of these islands, the most important are Jamaica and Barbados.

The former, even to the present day, has managed to retain its English tone to a much greater extent than the others; a peculiarity due possibly, in some measure, to the attention which has invariably been bestowed on those institutions which are more peculiarly characteristic of the mother country. The architecture of her churches is assimilated to models familiar at home, and the quaint tower and belfry of St. James', rising above clumps of leafy trees, are quite worthy of some old-fashioned rural parish in one of our counties.

There is scarcely one of the eleven parishes* of Barbados, that does not contain, at least a few, interesting fragments of the past; at the same time, the greater number of monuments are of course to be found in the cathedral church of St. Michael,—Christ Church is also remarkable for its monuments,—not indeed the present church, but the old burial-ground, between it and the sea. St. John's is noted, as being the burial-place of the supposed last of the Palæologi; the other parishes are more or less interesting.

As nothing can be uninteresting, which is connected with the misfortune and wanderings of so illustrious a race as the Palæologi, some digression may be permitted on the present occasion, although the scope of this work renders it unnecessary, and indeed out of place, to discuss the opinions of the many able writers, who have treated the subject in its many bearings, and especially with reference to the lineage and descendants of Theodore Palæologus, whose remarkable monumental inscription at Landulph, professes to give both:

Theodore, of Pesaro, was son of Camillo—son of Prosper—son of Theodore—son of John—son of Thomas, youngest brother of Constantine XIII., the last reigning sovereign of the Byzantine empire.

After many vicissitudes, this Prince came to England, in 1628, and was received by the English minister—the celebrated Duke of Buckingham—as befitted his birth.†

Before this, however, Theodore appears to have been married to Eudoxia Comnena, by whom he had a daughter named Theodora,‡ [born at Scio, 6th July, 1594, and married, October 10th, 1614, at the Greek Church of SS. Peter and Paul, Naples, to Prince Demetrius Rhodocanakis],

During his residence in England, Theodore Palæologus had, by Mary Balls,§ the following issue: — 1. Theodore, [buried in Westminster Abbey, in 1644?]; 2. John; 3. Ferdinand [the Barbadian]; 4. Mary, [d. unm.]; 5. Dorothy, [wife of William Arundel].

The earlier writers on Barbados seem to have an indistinct idea of the pretensions of Ferdinand Palæologus, but recent inquiries have thrown a considerable light on the question of his origin.

It took place at Cottingham in the East Riding of Yorkshire 1 May 1600

Ferdinand Palæologus appears to have settled in Barbados between 1628 and 1645, and to have become proprietor of a plantation in the parish of St. John, where, between 1649—1669, he was surveyor of highways, &c. 1678 and 1680 have both been assigned as the year in which he died, a discrepancy that ought certainly not to exist. The late Sir J. Emerson Tennant has stated that Palæologus is described "in the register of his interment," as "Lieutenant Ferdinand Palæologus." But this is at variance with the entry in the burial register of the Cathedral Parish of St. Michael in the same island, (a transcript of an older one, of which nothing is known), wherein the entry is made without either military title or baptismal name; and that this is substantially the case, is evident from the fact, that earlier writers who were aware of the burial register, have not mentioned the baptismal name of the deceased.*

There is doubtless some explanation of these apparent discrepancies. Possibly the errors of copyists, and the sanguine speculation of the Barbadians themselves, may have led to the inadvertent occurrence of oversights; for on the whole, there seems to be no doubt, that these accounts sustain the belief of the identification of Ferdinand as the son of Theodore Palæologus of Pesaro and Landulph.

Amongst the ruins of the Parish Church of St. John, which was destroyed in the hurricane of 1831, was discovered in the vault under the organ loft, the leaden coffin of Ferdinand Palæologus, in the position adopted by the Greek Church, which is the reverse of others. It was opened on the 3rd of May, 1844, and in it was found a skeleton of remarkable size, imbedded in quicklime—thus showing, that although Ferdinand may have accommodated himself to the circumstances of his position, he had died in the faith of his own Church.†

"In the Name of God, Amen. — I Ferdinand Palæologus, of the parish of Saint John, being sick in body, but in perfect memory, commit my soul into the hands of Almighty God, my most merciful Creator, and my body to be interred in a Christian burial there to attend the joyful resurrection of the just to eternal life by Jesus Christ, my most blessed Saviour and Redeemer. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal, this 26 of September, in the year of our Lord, 1670.

"Ferdinand Paleologus (L.S.)

‡ On the tomb of Palæologus, at Landulph, occur the names of his children by Mary Balls, viz., "Theodore, John, Ferdinando, Maria, and Dorothy." The latter was married in 1656 to William Arundel.

It is said, that during the last conflict for Grecian independence and deliverance from the Turkish yoke, an application was made by the Provisional Greek Government, assembled at Nauplia, to the authorities of Barbados, respecting any male descendants of Ferdinand Palæologus, who might still exist, but it was ascertained that there was none. This assertion, it may be added, has been denied. (See "Notes and Queries.") The truth is, the mere name of Palæologus suffers, with others of Royal origin, in this country, and is of no particular significance amongst the Greeks, many of whom adopted it, propria motu, and appear to have brought it here, where its rarity has attracted notice to many individuals, who, in consequence, have been erroneously accredited with an Imperial origin.

The early landowners, or "planters," used to be particular in their funeral arrangements; and most of the better families interred their dead in leaden coffins, cased in cedar or mahogany.

Family vaults were also common. That of the Chase family, at Christ Church, just mentioned, is the locality of a very remarkable (so-called) spiritual phenomenon.* The mausoleum of the Colepepper family, in a quiet recess on the brink of Hackle-stone's Cliff, in the parish of St. John, is singularly picturesque, and commands one of the most beautiful of sea views.

Many of these tombs have, from time to time, been broken up and rifled—particularly those in private cemeteries. In Jamaica, more especially, where estates often lie at an inconvenient distance from the parish church, there was always a private place of sepulture, generally near the mansion, but screened by trees, where, even now, one may frequently catch glimpses of old tombs, matted with ferns and a flowery undergrowth, among the deep shades of mango, wild tamarind, and pimento trees.

Jamaica, although, in some respects, as careful and imitative as her rival, was always more or less deficient in amour propre; and her population having absorbed the greater portion of the "roughs" then afloat in the Spanish waters, seems to have offered few social inducements to the higher order of settlers to remain, after accom-

Theodorus was a mariner on board the ship "Charles II." He died at sea, 1693, (Will Doct. Com.) when the property in Barbados went to his mother, although he appears to have had a wife named Martha, for her children are referred to in his will.

plishing the grand object of securing wealth, sufficient for the settling, or re-establishing, of their families in England.

Sometimes, death overtook those prudent worthies, and the well-paid servants of Government; and there being no lack of means in the hands of the executors, the island gradually became enriched with costly monuments. In many instances, particularly of later dates, the armorial sculptures on these monuments are not to be depended on; consequently, although the epitaphs are useful records, as regards dates and names, they are too often illusory in respect of family descent. In annotating, therefore, one ought not to forget that very excellent *names are common in the lists of rebels of an inferior grade, sent from England, and sold to the loyal settlers.

The following pages comprise all the monumental inscriptions of Barbados, from the earliest period, to the year 1750; after which date, it seemed unnecessary, with a few exceptions, to pursue the task of copying; the object being to secure the preservation of the much effaced inscriptions of the preceding century.

These monumental inscriptions generally, have been carefully collected, down to the above date, subsequent to which limit, they have been more or less abbreviated, as they gradually lose the interest attached to antiquity, and acquire a complimentary character, which, being quite conventional, ceases to answer any useful purpose.

A few extracts from the valuable collection of papers relating to Barbados, at the State Paper Office, may tend to throw a light on some of the accompanying Monumental Inscriptions.

There is a curious account of the order of march, from Fontabell to the "towne of St. Michael's," on the 23rd April, 1685, "for proclaiming our Gratious King James the Second." The regiments of foot were commanded and led as follows:

"1. Major Phillip ——, Colonels Ricd. Elliot and Jno. Fryer (Frere?)
"2. Major Geo. Lillington and Colonel Thomas Holmes.
"3. Major Abell Alleyne, Lt.-Col. Wm. Sandiford, and Col. Jno. Waterman.
"4. Major Wm. Lewgar (Legard?) and Col. Jno. Sampson.
"5. Major Samuell Smith and Col. Thos. Colleton.

* Amongst other remarkable names to be found in the registers of Barbados, are the following: — Evelyn, Walpole, Hoadley, Atterbury, Sancroft, Oates, Dangerfield, Cornish, Sarsfield, Ginkell, Sidney, Bedloe, Vane, Fauconbridge, Fleetwood, Claypole, Syndercombe, Ireton, Penderell, Levelis, Vere Byron, De la Warr, Talbot, Tudor, Stafford, Michelbourne, Hacker, Breakspeare, Walcot, Venner, Sheldon, Shirley, Rumbold, Ayloffe, St. Quentin, Bullen, &c.

" His Maj'ies Regiment Royall of Foot Guards,* commanded by the Honble. Coll. Edwyn Stede.

H.M.'s ship "Diamond,"† in Carlisle Bay, saluted during the ceremony.

In connection with Monmouth's Rebellion, we find, dated Nov. 25, 1665, an " Invoice of the Western Rebells shipt from Weymouth," (for Barbados), "in which occur some peculiar names, such as Gaich, Cumet, Mader, Follett, Jewell, Dolbeard, Duck, Pine, Forcey, Estmond, Guppy, Bovell, Pester, Cordelion, Venner, Osborne, &c. The invoice is signed by " George Penne."‡

It was customary to sell such persons as slaves for ten years or longer.

There is also on record, about the same period, a receipt granted by Mr. John Rosse, for one hundred prisoners, to be transported from Taunton. The latter were persons in humble life, and yet (showing how deceptive are genealogies based on mere nominal and local coincidences) we find among them Austin, Chamberlayne, Osborne, Mountstephen, Bellamy, Pearce, Bennet, &c.

On March 25, 1685, there is the account of the sale of sixty-seven rebels, who were delivered by Capt. Gardner, of " The Jamaica Merchant," to the following masters in Barbadoes, viz., Colonel T. Colleton, Mr. Nicholas Prideaux, Mr. Abel Allen, Mr. Edward Harlestone, Captain Thomas Morris, &c. Among the former were Walter Taaffe, Peaceful Knowles, &c.

The following is a specimen of the style of information connected with contemporaneous history. In the examination of Christianus Gardner (Barbados, Aug. 8, 1688), the witness states :—

" That about 8 months ago, being at the Coffee house in St. Michael's towne kept by the widow Hales, with severall in company.....they talked of the tryal of Mr. Cornish of London, amongst which one of the Company sayed, that one of the persons summoned to be of the said Cornish's jury, desired to be excused, for that he had had great dealings with the said Cornish, but the said Cornish desired he might be one of the jury. The Attorney General thereupon declared that he ought not to be of the jury, and that the king had liberty to except against him. .... It was also said by one of the Company, that one John Price summoned of the said Jury, urged that he was on my Lord Russell's tryall."

* It seems probable that a portion of the Body-Guard of Charles I. found their way, with Lord Willoughby, to Barbados, and were perhaps at the defence of Carlisle Block-house, in that island, when attacked by Sir George Ayscue. Amongst other records bearing on this question, may be mentioned No. 161, May 12th, 1639—State Papers—Home Series. See also The Broad Arrow of Aug. 15th, 1874.

.....MAJOR GENERAL .....
.....LORD CLARINA .....
.....1796.....

The Inscription is nearly obliterated.

THE above was, Nathaniel Massey, 2nd Baron Clarina, born 23rd May, 1773. He commanded the troops in Barbados; and left issue, three sons and two daughters.

In Burke's "Peerage," it is stated that Lord Clarina was married in 1796, and died in 1810, but the former date only appears (without context) on the slab. The Barony of Clarina, in the Peerage of Ireland, was created, 27 Dec., 1810, in the person of Eyre Massey, a General in the Army, Commander of the Forces in Ireland, and who had served at the Battle of Culloden. Dying in 1804, he was succeeded by his second and only surviving son, Nathaniel William, 2nd Baron, and Major-General, who died in Barbados, while Governor and Commander-in-Chief of that Island, leaving three sons and two daughters, by his wife Penelope. (See "Peerage.")

THERE was a well-known family of this name, in the seventeenth century, whereof was Alderman Giles Crouch. (See Pedigrees, Harl. MSS.)

On the tomb of John Bargrave, at Patrixboune, is commemorated his wife, daughter and coheiress of Giles Crouch, of London. (Bank's "Baronia A. C.")

(Ab.) MR. EDWARD CRISP, MERCHANT, ELDEST SON OF NICHOLAS CRISP, MERCHANT IN BRED STREET, LONDON, IN YE KINGDOM OF ENGLAND ..... OB. 14th JENVARY, 1678, AET. 50.—ALSO, MR. THOMAS YEATS. OB. 2nd MARCH, 168½. — ALSO, MRS. MARY YEATS, WIFE TO THE ABOVE-MENTIONED PERSONS....OB, 25th AUGUST, 1682....

Arms,.....On a chev. 5 horse shoes points downwards. (The arms are properly, Arg. on a chev. sa. 5 horse shoes or.)

THE founder of this family was Sir Nicholas Crispe, Knt., of London, great grandson of Ellis Crispe, Esq., of Marsefield, Gloucestershire, Alderman and Sheriff of London in 1625.

Sir Nicholas had a son, Ellis, who, by his wife Anne, daughter of Sir G. Strode, was father of Sir Nicholas Crispe of Hammersmith, who was created a Baronet in 1665. This latter gentleman was a merchant of vast fortune, and great consideration; he was a staunch Royalist, and advanced large sums to King Charles I. "All the succours which the king had from beyond seas, came through his hands." He raised, at his own expense, a regiment of horse, and on the failure of the Royal cause, retired to France, but subsequently returned. Sir Nicholas died in 1665, and the baronetcy continued in his family until the death of his great grandson Sir Charles Crispe, in 1740, when it became extinct.

In one of the Parish Registers of Barbados, the marriage is recorded (Dec. 8, 1643) of a Thomas Crispe, and Sarah Archer. There is also a bequest to his cousin, J. Archer, in the will* of a T. Crispe, later on, in the same century, of "a ring with this poesy of love—A S I S T C, so shall thee," i.e., As is now T. Crispe, so shalt thou be.

COLONEL EDWARD CHAMBERLAIN was father of Butler Chamberlain, whose son, Sir Willoughby Chamberlain, of Barbados, was knighted 1695, and died 1697. Mary, his widow, married George Greene, Esq., of Barbados, and, secondly, Sir John Witham, Bart., and died in 1687, leaving a numerous issue.

Sir Richard Dutton, in 1684, complains to the King, that Sir John Witham detained cargoes and imprisoned merchants for purposes of extortion; and that he also at a public-house, threatened to hang a member of council by court marshal in time of peace.—(S. P. O.)

March 10, 1684. Sir John Witham's wife declares that she has made over her estate to her children by her former husband, "Colonel Edward Chamberlaine, deceased."—(S. P. O.)

JOHN FREWEN,—OB. 1669, AET. 44.

AMONG the licences to go abroad (S. P. O.), Feb. 1633, Francis T(F?)rewin, aged 26, is named, as one of the passengers on board the "Bonaventure," for St. Christopher's. He appears to have been a native of Plympton, of which locality was also his companion, Matthew Archer. The suggestion may be thrown out, that John Frewin was son of Francis. It is quite possible that the latter may have been a member of the Worcestershire family of the same name.

ALLAN LYDE, MERCHANT, 17 JAN., 1680.

LYDE (Ayot St. Lawrence, Herefordshire), descended from Cornelius Lyde, of Staunton Wick, Somerset, born in 1641; the last male heir, Lionel Lyde, was created a baronet in 1772.

Allen Lyde was probably of this family, which had many connections with the Western colonies, in the seventeenth century.

Stephen Lyde, fourth son, and Lyonel, fifth son of Cornelius above mentioned, were planters in Virginia.

Three Lydes (Edward, John, and Sylvester,) were transported for participation in the rebellion of 1685.

THIS name, in Barbados, is said to have been altered from More, to Moore, by Colonel John More, said to have been the son of Thomas, (by his wife, Mary Longueville) a younger son of Sir Edward More, 1st Bart. of More Hall, co. Lancaster, and who subsequently removed to Jamaica, early in the eighteenth century, or late in the seventeenth. (See Notes to Moore, &c., Jamaica.)

(Ab.) ....ROBERT MILN, SON OF DAVID MILN.... OB... 1619 .. — ALSO .. DAVID, SECOND SON OF DAVID MILNE..OB... 1705.

THERE was an extensive and influential family of this name in Edinburgh, in the seventeenth century, whereof was Sir Robert Milne, and Milne, the King's architect, whose curious monument in the old Greyfriars' Churchyard still exists. The name very frequently occurs throughout the records of the Scottish metropolis, wherein David and Robert are the prevailing baptismal names.

Sir Robert Milne had a numerous issue, and it is probable that the Barbadian Miln (for the name is indifferently spelt with a y or an i, and with or without the final e) was one of his sons.

Of this family, there are monuments in the picturesque churchyard of Inveresk —namely, of Admiral Sir David Milne, &c.

James Milne, Esq., of Trinity Grove, near Edinburgh, represents one branch of the family ; while another has been distinguished in the naval service, and of which, is the present Admiral Sir Alexr. Milne, G.C.B.

HONORABLE JOHN PEERS, ESQ., ... HESTER, DAU. OF SIR THOMAS..... OF HEREFORDSHIRE.....FRANCES, DAU. OF HIS EXCELLENCY SIR JONATHAN ATKINS, OB, 1685.

SIR RICHARD PEERS, of Barbados, married a daughter of James Hawley, Esq. of Brentford, and sister of Henry Hawley, Governor of Barbados. Sir Richard was Governor of Barbados in 1631 ; he was afterwards a Member of the Provisional Council in 1639—1651, and 1660. John Peers, who died in 1685, was a son of Sir Richard ; he was, with Colonel S. Barwick, appointed a Commissioner to take oaths in the Plantation. In 1673 he held no less than 1000 acres of land in Barbados. By his first wife, Hester, he had issue, John, Richard, Margaret, and Elizabeth ; and by his second, Thomas, Frances, and Anne wife of Capt. Hale. Henry Peers was a member for St. George's in 1706 ; Speaker of Assembly in 1733; Lieutenant-General and Governor of the island in 1740, in which year (Sept. 4) he died.

In 1649, Samuel Atkins had a warrant to ship horses to Barbados.—(C. S. P.)

ROBERT RICH of Barbados, living in 1682, married Helen, daughter of the Rev. — Thornborough, son of the Rt. Rev. John Thornborough, Bishop of Worcester.

Probably of the family of Rich, of London, [see Lord Rich—in which, Jany. 24, 1676, a Baronetcy was created]. Sir Charles, great grandson of the 2nd Lord Rich, had an uncle Robert Rich, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Adam Felton, and is said to have died without issue, but whether this is a mistake or not, it is difficult to say.

In Ligon's History of Barbados, 1657 [Q. 1675 ?], there is a pleasing account of the almost exceptional kindness of Colonel Walrond, to his servants and slaves.

Joseph was possibly one of the three younger surviving sons of Bernard Ward, ancestor of the present peer, who was killed in a duel, in 1690; and this supposition is strengthened by finding the main line connected although at a much more recent period with Barbados.

There is an example of a somewhat similar cross and annulet, engraved in Edmonston's Heraldry.

(Ab.) HON. JOHN FREERE, ESQ., OB. JAN. —, 1766, ÆT. 60.

THIS distinguished family being well known to the public, a few remarks only are necessary.

There was a Baronetcy conferred, in 1620, on Edward Frere, of Water Eyton, Oxfordshire, but leaving no issue by his wife Mary, daughter of John Stafford, of Blatherwick, it became extinct on his death, in 1630.

The Freres of Barbados came originally from Suffolk. Mary, daughter of John Frere, who was Governor of Barbados in 1720, married Joseph Pilgrim, Chief Judge of the Common Pleas, who died in 1734, left issue (the Rev.) John, of New Windsor, Berks, who married Keturah, daughter of the Hon. James Bruce.

Government House in Barbados, is called "Pilgrim," after the family of the same name; and, about the middle of last century, a branch of the Barbadian family of Archer settling in Jamaica, probably, so named one of their estates there, although there were also Pilgrims in the latter island.

THERE is a curious Spiritualist story connected with this family. (See "General Notes"—"Once a Week," March 11, 1865, &c.)

The Chase family of Maldon, and the Brewsters of Halsted Lodge, Essex, were connected; both seem to have possessed estates in Barbados, and the latter, also in Jamaica. There was at least one intermarriage between the Brewsters and Archers in Barbados.

JOSEPH BROWNE may have been a member of the noble family of Oranmore. At the same time, the following is not unworthy of notice. A baronetcy was conferred on James Brown, of Barbados [Extinct Baronetage], and Willoughby, a daughter of Sir Jas. Brown, married Sir W. Yeamans, Bart. of Barbados. We also find that Colonel Joseph Brown, born 1665, had issue:—1. Joseph, aet. 25 in 1715 ; William, James, John, and Damaris.*

FEW notices of this name are to be found in pedigrees. It occurs in one of the early wills of Archer, in Barbados, where also, in 1713, is recorded the marriage of Nathan Kirton and Mary Archer. In England [K. 6, p. 136, Her. Coll.], in the pedigree of Richard, brother of Sir Simon Archer, Katherine, the former's daughter, appears to have married in 1640, Edmund Kirton, of Thorpe Mandeville.

THE barony of Hackett is one of the dormant peerages of Ireland. Lineage—Paganus de Hachett, a knight of King Henry the Second's suite, at the conquest of Ireland. He was father of Reginald and William, which latter gave his infant son, Peter, to King John, in 1204, as hostage for John de Courcy, Earl of Ulster. Lords

Robert, John, and William, followed in succession. In the certified list of peers who sat in the parliament of Edward I., the Barons de Hackett are included. 1307, Sir Henry Fitz Geoffrey Hackett, after whom came Lord Peter Hackett, Lord John Hackett, Lord Richard Hackett, Lord Peter Hackett (a kinsman of the Geraldines), joined in the Desmond revolt.

This family decayed under Queen Elizabeth, but having risen again, risked all for King James II., under Lord James Hackett, who left a son named Pierce Hackett. (Lodge—seriatim.)

Sir Robert Hackett, the subject of the epitaph, was one of the gentlemen of Barbados, raised to the baronetage by King Charles II., in 1661.

TOMBS of the family of Archer of St. Lucy [and St. Philip] (destroyed, or displaced, during the hurricane of 1831).

The following appeared in Notes and Queries, July 11th, 1874 (abridged):—

"My attention has lately been drawn to the question of the origin of the Archer family of Barbados in the seventeenth century from having seen a work on this surname. In this work frequent suggestions are thrown out in favour of the Worcestershire origin of this family. A careful analysis of the contents, and collation, with other sources of information, will, I think, show that there were Archers in Barbados from London, Suffolk, and Lincoln, but that Edward Archer, of St. Philip's and St. Lucy's parish,—will proved 1693,—who died there in 1693, was none of these, but was of a distinct and Worcestershire origin. I am well aware how little reliance can be placed on family traditions, yet, to a certain extent, they possess some value as clues. The descendants of this Edward Archer are still to be found, not only in Barbados, but in Jamaica,† where two of his grandsons settled about 1753. In both branches of the family, notwithstanding the lapse of time since their separation, the tradition still exists that their English progenitors were Royalists, and of Umberslade descent; [and this, too, in face of the facts, that Sir John Archer of the De Boys, or Essex, family was himself in Barbados, and that he had relatives in Jamaica, in the seventeenth century,] and they still treasure an heirloom transmitted from generation to generation, which would seem to strergthen the first part of the tradition, viz., a locket, set in gold of the period, containing a portrait of Charles I. reading.

"That the Worcestershire Archers were Royalists, there can be no doubt; the children of Edward Archer of Hanley Castle, eldest son of John Archer of Welland, by his wife Eleanor, daughter of Richard Frewen of Hanley Castle, were dispossessed of their estates by Cromwell. We find, about 1652, 'William Archer and William Walter petitioning on behalf of the children, being minors, Thomas, George, and Anne, of the late Edward Archer of Hanley Castle.' There is no mention of his elder children in this petition; they, no doubt, had equally incurred the Protector's displeasure. Thomas, George, and Anne, being minors, might be presumed to be guiltless of political sympathies. These Welland Archers appear to have broken up entirely, about 1649, and to have dispersed in all directions, their large possessions passing into the hands of their Cromwellite neighbours—the Lechmeres* and others. Presumably, the Frewens—maternal ancestors of Edward of Hanley—were also Royalists, for we find them settled in Barbados, at the same period as Edward Archer, of 1693, as well as the Thornes, Moores, and other families, and Kirtons, with whom the [Umberslade] Netherthorpe Archers had intermarried. It is a curious and suggestive fact, that the first Barbadian ancestor of Edward Archer of 1693, called his estates 'Cleobury,' and 'Oldbury.' Now, if we refer to Dugdale's 'Pedigree of Archer of

* With whom they intermarried once. † Now in the female line—Walcott, Campbell, &c.

Umberslade,' we find that Thomas le Archer—(temp. Edward III.)—married Margarita, daughter of—— Cleburie, and Rowland Archer [grandson of Archer] of Umberslade, quartered the arms of the Mortimer-Cleburie family. His sister was Mrs. Walrond, and his aunt, Mrs. Kirton. Again, Oldbury is a town in Worcestershire. I cannot but think that a deep significance lies in the names chosen by this branch of Barbadian Archers, for the first properties held by them, in the land of their [choice]. They would serve, not only to keep alive the cherished memory of the mother country, but act as landmarks to their posterity, showing the line of Umbersdale from which they derived, as in the case of Cleoburie, and their Worcester origin from Oldbury.

"The earliest Archers mentioned in the Parish Registers of Barbados, are Richard, Leonard, and Nicholas.* They were undoubtedly sons of Nicholas Archer of Hustropp, co. Lincoln, and of "foreign pts." His will is recorded in London. Sons, Richard, Leon (qy. cont. Leonard), Nicholas, and Christopher. That they were also Cromwellites and Puritans, I think we may infer, from the baptismal names of their children, when we consider the mania, at that period, for Biblical appellations among the followers of the Protector. Nathaniel, Joseph, Joshua, and Peter, are the Christian names we find bestowed on the offspring of these early Archers, and they were perpetuated in their descendants. The name of Edward appears but once amongst them; one Peter Archer, grandson of Leonard, called his son by this name, but he was born in 1703, ten years after the death of Edward Archer of 1693.

"It is morally impossible that the latter could be descended from either of the three brothers, Richard, Leouard, or Nicholas, since the only member of their respective families who bore the name of Edward was born after his demise.

At the present time, baptismal designations have no signification; it was not thus, however, in the days of our forefathers. Let us, then, turn from these Lincoln Archers to Edward Archer, of 1693, and his descendants. In no single instance do we find a Scriptural name amongst them, but in their stead we do find the baptismal names borne for centuries by the Umberslade Archers—Thomas, Edward, Robert, John, and William—names, moreover, borne by the sons of John Archer of Welland, from whom I claim descent for Edward Archer, who died in Barbados, in 1693, either through his eldest son, Edward, of Hanley Castle, or through Robert, a younger son, born 1616. We know that the former's eldest son, John, was in 'foreign pts' (see Nash); it is possible, nay, probable, that his other 'dispossessed' elder sons were also emigrants. Edward, of Hanley Castle, was born June, 1600. Allowing thirty years for a generation, Edward Archer, of Barbados, might clearly have been his son; were he born about 1630, he would only have been sixty-three at the time of his death in 1693. That some members of the Worcestershire Archers did emigrate, is an undoubted fact; for among the wills of Archers in 'foreign pts' we find those of

* There are no Archers named in the List of Inhabitants of Barbados, in 1638; but about 1640—80, there were Archers from Hampshire, in addition to those from the other counties mentioned. The Archers of Wainfleet [1684] were evidently a branch of Umberslade, as were also the earlier Norfolk and Suffolk Archers.

'John of Worcester,' Humphrey Archer, &c. The former, I presume, was the son of Edward of Hanley. I am more disposed, however, to think that Edward Archer of Barbados was the son of the younger brother Robert, son of John Archer of Welland and Eleanor Frewen of Hanley.

"Robert Archer was baptized at Hanley, April, 1616. He married Anne Skinner of Ledbury, and was the father of many children. His son Robert was 'Parson of Castle-Morton': he married, 1677, Hannah Moore, daughter of Edward Moore, of Suckley Court. Two short tabulations will show more clearly than I can do by words, my reason for believing that this younger Robert was a brother of Edward of Barbados. That Edward Archer's father was named Robert, I myself believe, though I readily admit that my reasons for this preference will not satisfy genealogists; but, in the absence of proof, let the following fact weigh for what it is worth. During the hurricane of 1831, in common with many other ancient mansions of the old settlers (or 'Planters,' as they were called), the ancestral home of this branch of the Barbadian Archers was destroyed; beneath the foundation-stone was found, by Mr. Edward Archer (the owner), an exquisite porcelain* cup, on which were the initials R. A. in gold. It is necessary to explain, that Mr. Edward Archer was innocent of all genealogical precise information, and, like many others, merely relied on a family tradition, without any misgiving, and, at the same time, without any interest in such questions.

R. C."

* It was apparently of Sèvrse.

† Qy. Brother of Rev. Robert.

‡ The author of the above remarks might be equally critical with the pedigrees of, at least, two-thirds of the families whose origin is not less doubtful, although unquestioned. The arguments advanced by R. C. as above, still leave untouched the hypothesis of the descent of E. A. [1693] from a Suffolk descendant of Edward [mat. at Oxon], son of Miles [2nd son of Richard Archer, by his wife, Maud Delamere], who lived at Ambleside, co. Westmoreland, towards the close of the 16th century. The Plantations, or estates, of the families of Archer [E. A. 1693], Brathwaite [Miles], and Gretton of St. Philip, were contiguous. The latter intermarried with that of Toppin, present representatives of which are, the Revd. G. P. Toppin, and Capt. Toppin, 18th Regt. [Royal Irish].

(One of the oldest places of worship in the island, if not the very oldest.)

MONOGRAM, WILLIAM ARNOLD, 1688.

THE "Olive Blossom" was fitted out in 1605 by Sir Olive Leigh (whom Purchas styles a "worshipful Knight of Kent") for Barbados.

Lord Ley, afterwards Earl of Marlborough, obtained the first grant of the island, but the first regular settlement was planned and accomplished by Sir William Courteen, who fitted out, in 1624, the ship "William and John" (John Powell, Master), which, arriving at its destination with forty emigrants, founded, in 1625, the present colony.

Popular tradition assigns to William Arnold the distinction of having been the first Englishman to set foot on this island, but such a belief can scarcely be reconciled with the date on his tomb.

In 1628, Charles Woolferstone and sixty-four emigrants, under a company of London merchants, embarked for Barbados, where on arrival each "took up" one hundred acres. The names of these merchants were, Marmaduke Brandon, Robert and Henry Wheatley, Alexander Banister, Edmund Forster, Robert Swinnerton, John Charles, and John Fairingdon.

ANTIGUA.

ANTIGUA.

FEW of our older colonies have a more eventful and romantic history than Antigua, and its vicissitudes have been comprehensively narrated in a work entitled "Antigua and the Antiguans," from which the following Monumental Inscriptions have been extracted. In this island, as well as in those of St. Christopher and Montserrat, there are many more such records, but in the course of flying visits, the author had not the same opportunities, as in Jamaica, and in Barbados, of making, personally, additions to the present collection.

For an account of the Civil, Military, and Judicial establishments, see "The Colonial List." There is a House of Assembly, of twenty-five members, and a Council, which nominates the Governor, subject to the confirmation of the Crown.

N.B. — The Governor-in-Chief of the Leeward Islands resides at St. John's, Antigua.

ST. CHRISTOPHER, NEVIS, AND ANGUILLA.

ST. CHRISTOPHER (Nevis and Anguilla). Until 1866, the Government was administered by a Lieut.-Governor, subordinate to the Governor of Antigua. The first Governor-in-Chief, 1834, was Sir Evan McGregor, Bart., since when it has had (to 1870) thirty-six Governors, Lieut.-Governors, Administrators, and Presidents.

Nevis was discovered in 1498, and settled by the English in 1628. It has had fourteen Lieut.-Governors and Presidents, from 1841 to 1870.

"The latter island," says a correspondent, "I am told, abounds with inscriptions, not only in the churches, but also in private burial grounds about the country." Unfortunately, the author has been unable to obtain but few of these.

CARMICHAEL, ACTING GOVERNOR,—SYMPATHISING WITH THE GENEROUS FEELING OF—THE INHABITANTS OF THIS UNITED COLONY—IN—THE UNIVERSAL EXPRESSION OF SINCERE REGRET,—WAS PLEASED TO GRANT, IN THEIR BEHALF, THIS MEMORIAL TO HIS FAME.

(Verses follow.)

CAPTAIN WILLIAM PEAKE was the brother of the late Sir Henry Peake, Kt., Surveyor of the Navy, from 1806 to 1822.

The subject of the above inscription is briefly referred to, in the "Naval Biographical Dictionary," as follows:—"Captain William Peake was killed, and his ship, the 'Peacock,' 18 guns and 122 men, was sunk in a desperate action with the American sloop 'Hornet,' 20 guns and 165 men, 24th February, 1813."

It does not appear whether this officer was married and left any descendants. His brother, Sir Henry, however, was the father of two distinguished naval officers, viz., Captain T. L. Peake, who served on the Walcheren Expedition of 1809, and during the memorable action with the French ship "Rivoli," 74 guns, in 1812,—and Commander H. F. Peake. There was also a Lieutenant Charles Peake, (born 1793, died 1847,) who had done good service in his day, but whether he was a member of the above family is not known to the author.

HIS EXCELLENCY MAJOR-GENERAL JOHN MURRAY — AND THE HONOURABLE COURT OF POLICY—IN THE NAME, AND ON THE BEHALF OF THE INHABITANTS —OF THIS UNITED COLONY,—HAVE DEDICATED THIS MONUMENT TO THE MEMORY —OF HUGH LYLE CARMICHAEL, ESQ.,—MAJOR-GENERAL OF HIS MAJESTY'S FORCES,

* The Rev. W. G. G. Austin, and the Rev. P. A. Stevenson, have contributed these inscriptions.

SIR JAMES CARMICHAEL SMYTH, K.C.H., &c., born 22nd Feb., 1780, was created a Baronet 25th August, 1821. He was one of the eight sons of James Carmichael, M.D., F.R.S., Phys. Extraordinary to George III., by his wife, Mary Holyland; and married Harriet, daughter of Genl. Robert Morse.

The family assumed the name of Smyth, in compliance with the testamentary injunction of James Smyth of Atheury, maternal grandfather of James Carmichael, the father of the first Baronet.

AND K.H., — BORN 19th JANUARY, 1780, DIED 2d JANUARY, 1841. — HE SERVED THROUGHOUT THE WAR IN THE PENINSULA AND — THE NETHERLANDS —UP TO ITS TERMINATION BY THE GLORIOUS VICTORY OF — WATERLOO. — IN 1821, HE RECEIVED FROM HIS SOVEREIGN, THE OFFICE (PATENT) OF VENDUE MASTER OF DEMERARA AND ESSEQUIBO, — WHICH HE HELD TO HIS DECEASE.— IN 1823—HE WAS APPOINTED TO THE COMMAND OF THE MILITIA,—AND DURING THE MANY YEARS HE HELD IT—RENDERED ESSENTIAL SERVICE TO THE COLONY, —IN THE PRESERVATION OF ITS INTERNAL TRANQUILLITY. — THIS TABLET IS ERECTED BY THE SURVIVING OFFICERS OF THE MILITIA—WHO SERVED UNDER HIM, AND BY FRIENDS — WHO SYMPATHISE WITH HIS SORROWING FAMILY—FOR THE IRREPARABLE LOSS THEY HAVE SUSTAINED.—HE WAS BELOVED IN LIFE AND HIS DEATH—WAS LAMENTED BY THE WHOLE COMMUNITY.—HIS REMAINS WERE INTERRED — WITH THE HONOURS DUE TO HIS RANK,—IN THE MILITARY BURIAL GROUND — AT EVE LEARY.*

SACRED TO THE MEMORY OF—ALEXANDER MILNE, ESQ.,—LATE LIEUTENANT-COLONEL 19th REGIMENT,—WHO DEPARTED THIS LIFE ON THE 5th OF NOVEMBER, 1827,—AGED 46 YEARS.—30 OF WHICH HAD BEEN MOST ZEALOUSLY DEVOTED— TO THE SERVICE OF HIS COUNTRY. — THIS TABLET HAS BEEN ERECTED BY THE OFFICERS OF THE 19th REGIMENT, AS A MARK—OF THEIR SINCERE ESTEEM AND RESPECT, TO THE MEMORY—OF THEIR MUCH LAMENTED COMMANDING OFFICER —WHOSE REMAINS, BY HIS OWN PARTICULAR DESIRE,—ARE INTERRED IN THE MILITARY BURIAL GROUND AT EVE LEARY.

* Eve Leary is the name of the Cantonment of George Town, Demerara. N.B. The author, while staying there in 1857, witnessed precisely such a phenomenon as that described, in Mr. Waterton's work on South America, as probably due to subterranean volcanic agencies.

TRINIDAD.—Discovered 1498. First colonized by the Spaniards in 1588. In temporary French possession in 1676. In 1797 it surrendered to Admiral Harvey and Sir Ralph Abercrombie. The latter's A. D. C., Sir Thomas Picton, was left as first Governor. Definitely ceded to Great Britain in 1802. The list of Spanish Governors from 1735 to 1753 includes thirteen names.

Since the British occupation in 1797 there have been of Commissioners, Governors, Lieut.-Governors, and Administrators, fifty-seven.

DOMINICA.

DOMINICA.—Discovered by Columbus, 3rd November, 1493. Granted, by patent, to the Earl of Carlisle, 2nd June, 1627. Under the Treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, it became a neutral island. In 1771 it was formed into a separate government, under Sir William Young. In 1778 it was captured by the French. Restored to England in 1783, Sir John Ord became Governor. In 1805, Sir George Prevost being Governor it gallantly repelled an attack made on it by the French, since when it has remained in the undisturbed possession of the British.

TURKS' AND CAICOS ISLANDS.

TURKS AND CAICOS ISLANDS.—Formerly (until 1848) included in the Bahama group.

THE VIRGIN ISLANDS.

THE VIRGIN ISLANDS.—These islands, discovered in 1493, so far as they are British, became so in 1666, but a regular Government was not established until 1773.

THE BAHAMA ISLANDS.

BAHAMAS.

BAHAMAS.—A group of upwards of nineteen small islands of which St. Salvador is remarkable as having been the first land discovered by Columbus.

New Providence was settled by the English in 1629; was alternately held by them, and the Spaniards, and French, after which it became a rendezvous for pirates until their extirpation in 1718. In 1783 these islands were ultimately annexed to Great Britain.

HONDURAS.

HONDURAS.— On the east coast of Central America. Discovered in 1502. Constituted a Colony in 1861.
